German Government in Note to U. S. Protests Economic Blockage Placed in Ruhr Valley.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Paris, February 14.—More than a dozen trains with coal from the Ruhr left yesterday for various destinations, it was stated in advices reaching here today. Five trains of coal and one of coke were destined for France and Belgium, two coal trains for Italy, two for Switzerland and five for Poland.

Thirty-two arrests were made in Gelsenkirchen in connection with the wounding of two French gendarmes there Monday, the reports show. The prisoners were mostly members of the German security police, in civilian attire.

BOYCOTT BATTLE BECOMES ACTUAL

Essen, February 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—The boycott battle between the Franco-Belgian occupational forces and the Germans is daily becoming more acute in the Ruhr, particularly in Essen. The most noticeable features are the failure of co-operation by the German police and the refusal of hotels and merchants to serve the French and Belgians.

In retaliation, the allies seized two of the largest hotels in Essen, but this was met by further active opposition by the Germans. Yesterday the Germans severed the electric current supplying the Kaiserhof hotel, where the allied engineering commission was quartered.

The French countered with an ultimatum that unless the light were restored by 6 o'clock last evening the lighting system of the city lights would be shut off. At that hour the Kaiserhof was still without electricity, but the city lights continued to blaze forth. The Germans said that troops were sent to cut the power but failed because the doors to the plant were barred.

Official Arrested.

Vice Burgomaster Schaefer was arrested this morning in connection with this incident.

Figures on the child population and milk supply of Essen are announced in German quarters in substantiation of the claim that the occupation is causing acute distress. The city, according to these figures, has 22,000 children under 2 years of age, approximately 45,000 under 6 years and 82,000 children of school age. The daily milk supply thus far this month has been 5,800 to 7,000 liters, as compared with 35,000 liters for the same period in January and in February of last year. It is pointed out, however, that these months ordinarily are bad for providing milk.

Auxiliary Measure Urges Joint Probe Veterans' Bureau

Larsen Makes Further Charges of Alleged Graft, Mismanagement and Irregular Expenditures.

WOULD PLACE SIX ON INQUIRY BOARD

Complete Report of Central, Regional Sub Offices and Vocational Schools Is Provided.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, February 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Making further charges of alleged graft, mismanagement and irregular expenditure of funds, Representative Larsen, of Georgia, today introduced in the house an auxiliary measure to his former resolution calling for a complete investigation of the United States Veterans' Bureau. Today's resolution provides for the appointment of a joint congressional committee, three from the house and three from the senate, to investigate all the affairs of the bureau and report back to congress not later than January 1, 1924.

It particularly calls for an inquiry into a number of hospital construction contracts let in recent months, as well as the administration of regional offices and districts.

In a formal statement Representative Larsen said if conditions in the bureau are such as reports indicate, congress cannot expect an interested public to long endure the lack of attention which congress and other public officials charged with the management and execution of public affairs seem to manifest.

The resolution introduced today, he said, was not intended as an abandonment of a similar measure presented last March, but simply as an auxiliary to it for the purpose of meeting the exigencies that have arisen since then.

Expect Favorable Report.

A special committee of the senate now holding hearings on a resolution by Senator Walsh, democrat, of Massachusetts, to determine whether it is desirable to start a congressional probe into the affairs of the bureau, will issue a favorable report, it was strongly indicated today. Senator Walsh urged that the special committee look into the charges and make recommendations as to whether a complete investigation is warranted.

Provides Six Members.

"That a bi-partisan joint committee of six members of congress, three to be selected from the senate, appointed by its president, and three to be selected from the house of representatives, appointed by its speaker, be and hereby is empowered and directed to investigate and make a full and complete report concerning the central regional and sub offices as well as hospitals, vocational training schools and other institutions, with view of determining whether said bureau and organizations aforesaid have been and are now being properly, efficiently and economically administered; whether justice, efficiency and expense

$2,000,000 HOME FOR BACHELORS WILL BE ERECTED

Structure Will Be Built on Harris Street Between Ivy and Courtland, It Is Announced.

BY PAUL JONES

At a cost of approximately $2,000,000 a 12-story bachelors' apartment will be constructed immediately on Harris street, between Ivy and Courtland.

This structure, which is being erected by E. W. Bigham Investment company, of Atlanta, will be built to meet a crying need that has been felt in this city for many years for suitable living space for hundreds of well-to-do unmarried men, who require centrally located residences but who also demand the service that usually is not provided in boarding houses and the smaller hotels.

The building, which is to have twelve floors, will contain 396 apartments, with 818 rooms, and will be equipped with every luxury and convenience known to the modern architect.

All Modern Features.

All the modern features that can be procured with which to make this the most delightful residence that could be provided for single men will also be included in the new building.

The new apartment, which will be the only one of its kind in the southern states, so far as is known, was designed by the well-known Atlanta architects, Daniel & Beutell, whose offices are in the Healey building.

Mr. Daniel, of the firm of Daniel & Beutell, said that the work on the new building will be started as soon as preliminary matters have been cleared away, and that the building would be completed within a year's time.

Convenient Location.

The apartment will stand in a most convenient section of the city, just off Peachtree street, within a short distance of the Capital City club, and within a few blocks of the theaters and the center of the retail section.

That it will prove an immediate success is believed by many who have commented upon the enterprise.

Temporary Chief May Take Place Of Chief Beavers

Indications Now Are That Either Jett or Holcombe Will Get Chance.

Appointment of either Night Chief E. L. Jett or Captain A. J. Holcombe as provisional chief for a period of 90 days or six months in the event efforts to depose Chief James L. Beavers are successful is the intention of the police committee of council at its session Friday night, according to information prevalent in political circles Wednesday.

While members of the committee refused to divulge plans relative to appointment of a successor to Chief Beavers, several have expressed themselves as favoring selection of a man in the department, giving him a fair trial to demonstrate his ability in directing the force, and if his efforts are considered efficient to make him permanent chief.

Councilman Fred Woodall, a member of the committee, stated Wednesday that he was opposed to going "outside the department" for a man to fill the position of chief in the event ouster proceedings are successful.

"It would be a reflection upon the 300 members of the department," declared Councilman Woodall, "to go elsewhere and obtain a man for the position without first trying out one or several members of the department in that light. I firmly believe that there is certainly one man in the department who can efficiently direct it and I am not alone in believing this, for other members of the committee have told me the same thing."

Rheba Crawford to Take Role in Broadway Show

New York, February 14.—Dainty Rheba Crawford, Salvation lass in real life, will enact that role on the Broadway stage.

She will be the heroine of a three-act drama called "My Gal, Sal," founded on the soul-saving meetings she held on the steps of the Gaiety theater despite police orders.

Miss Crawford resigned as captain of the Salvation Army because of publicity given her career. She refused offers to go into movies or write of her experiences.

Rheba Crawford is a former Atlanta girl, having been engaged in Salvation Army work here for a number of years while her parents, Salvation Army officials, were stationed here.

TEACHERS OF CITY GIVEN PROTECTION BY CIVIL SERVICE

Rules Will Apply to All Instructors Who Have Been in System for as Long as Two Years.

Adoption of civil service rules which provide protection to principals and teachers in the public school system, award of a contract for erection of the northeast junior high school and approval of estimates on the two new senior high schools—boys' senior and girls' senior high schools—were features of the called meeting of the board of education Wednesday morning.

Action of the board in adopting the civil service rules is to assure permanency of positions to all principals and teachers in the public school system who have been in service for two or more years, thus obviating the necessity of annual elections each June.

During the first two years of service teachers will be considered under the new rules, as probationary employees and will not be under civil service. At the expiration of the probationary period if a teacher conforms to the required regulations, she becomes a permanent teacher.

Adoption of the civil service rules by the board was in compliance with the recently adopted charter amendment which provided the civil service feature for teachers.

Contract Awarded.

The contract for general construction of the junior high school northeast, which will cost approximately $250,000, was awarded to R. M. Walker Construction company, Jennings-Gresham company was awarded

Wind Is Bringing Coldest Weather Of 1923 to City

Residents of City Are Nipped by 30-Mile Per Hour Wind Wednesday Afternoon.

A 30-mile per hour wind from the northwest Wednesday was rapidly bringing on a cold wave which is expected to send the mercury down to 25 degrees in Atlanta during the early hours of Thursday morning.

A noticeable "bite" was in the air during Wednesday afternoon, although the sun was shining bright, and the wind was not pronouncedly unpleasant despite its velocity.

Wonderful "hog killing" weather was promised Georgia farmers by C. F. von Herrmann, local weather man, who also remarked that water be cut off to prevent bursting plumbing fixtures in the freeze which is expected to develop into the most severe experienced so far this winter.

Two Days of Cold.

Two days of cold weather are promised for Atlanta. Thursday and Friday probably will be the coldest days of the winter, and will "prove to be the backbone" of our winter, which, I thought, had been broken," in the words of Mr. von Herrmann.

The cold weather headed for Atlanta is the result of a terrific blizzard which is sweeping across the Dakotas, through Minnesota and Wisconsin, said to be the worst blizzard in 25 years. A remarkably high pressure area centered over the northwestern portion of the United States, extending into Canada, and a pressure of 31 inches was reported, while only an insignificant "low" of 30.2 centered over the West Indies.

Belief Expressed in Diplomatic Circles That Lausanne Terms Will Be Accepted.

TURKS ANXIOUSLY AWAIT ISMET PASHA

British Place Small Credence in Report That French Gunboat Was Sunk by Turks.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Constantinople, February 14.—Reuter's understands that the Turkish authorities at Adrianople have ordered all the old men, women and children to vacate the town as a precautionary measure, because, "in the event of trouble, it would naturally be focused on Adrianople."

FRENCH BELIEVE TURKS ARE BLUFFING.

Paris, February 14.—(By The Associated Press.)—The representative of the Angora government at Smyrna has not yet delivered the reported ultimatum for the withdrawal of the warships there to the allied chiefs.

In French diplomatic circles the opinion is expressed that the Turks have reached the end of their string of "bluffs," and are now anxious to settle matters definitely, and in diplomatic quarters here the feeling is that the 'ausanne terms will be accepted without important modifications.

Ismet Pasha Lost.

The Angora authorities are displaying signs of impatience over the non-arrival from Lausanne of Ismet Pasha, the foreign minister who, according to official information received by the French foreign office was still at Bucharest, Rumania, this morning.

The Angora assembly is anxious to begin discussion of the Lausanne peace treaty draft as soon as Mustapha Kemal Pasha returns from Smyrna where he went to open officially the Turkish economic congress, but according to several members of the national assembly, Kemal is too busy attending to his domestic affairs. (It was reported from Constantinople recently that Kemal had just been married and is now on his honeymoon.) Some mild criticism of him on this score has been voiced.

The assembly appears to be desirous of discussing the treaty along broad lines, the French advices indicate, the tendency being to ignore the details upon which the Turkish delegation at Lausanne laid so much stress.

SCOUT SHIP SINKING STORY.

London, February 14.—(By The Associated Press.)—Nothing is known here regarding the report circulated in America that a French destroyer had been sunk by the Turks. According to an Exchange Telegraph message from Paris such a rumor is current there but the French government has no confirmation of it.

The Constitution Offers Another Daily Feature

Many stories of interest to Georgians during the time shortly after the civil war were carried only in The Atlanta Constitution.

The stories as they were written in those days compared in a marked way with the writings of today's journalists. You can just feel a past but not forgotten era as you scan them. The headlines too were different, in fact so different that in many cases they appear real "funny" to the reader and journalist of the present time.

The Constitution of today is going to give its readers an opportunity to see how "stories" were "handled" in those days. These stories and the headlines are being photographed by the engraver straight from the old news files of The Constitution, which are today valuable pages of history. They are being started from the month of February, 1873, just fifty years ago.

The first one to be printed in The Constitution will be found tomorrow on this page at the bottom of the first column. It will be a story that was carried in The Constitution just fifty years ago from tomorrow.

One of them will appear in The Constitution each day and it will be found in the same position as the first one—the first page at the bottom of the first column.

Harding Considers Federal Survey of Car Shortage

Department Officials See Inadequate Facilities for Promised Business Activities in Near Future.

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.
Washington, February 14.—(By Constitution Bureau Wire.)—President Harding, in conference with department officials, today has given serious consideration to the appointment of a federal commission to study the car shortage, present and prospective, on leading railroads of the country, so great has been the concern of the government over the problem.

Officials of the department of agriculture, commerce and labor are said to be convinced that business activities of the country will increase in such large proportions in coming months that present facilities for moving freight will be entirely inadequate, and that a congestion is inevitable. The statement is made that if it had not been for the two great labor strikes last summer, the situation would have manifested itself ere this time. Railroads are reported to have sufficient rolling stock, other than coal carriers, to move the bulk of the traffic offered at present, but it is the conviction of government experts that the predicted increase in the volume of business will give rise to a new situation.

Railroads Unprepared.
Most executives of the transportation systems candidly admit that the railroads are unprepared for a condition of general prosperity, few companies having added any large number of cars to their equipment since the war. Reasons for this are said to be found in the high interest rates and the fact that some roads have been unable to borrow large needed sums on any reasonable basis. The slowness of the government in making final settlements with some of the carriers is given as another cause which acted to keep them out of the market for locomotives and cars.

As a result of the strike last year, the railroads did little, it is said, toward reconditioning cars and locomotives. This setback came just as business began to improve, and the carriers are still engaged in an effort to overcome the condition created by the walkout of the shippers.

It is pointed out that the most acute car shortage has been felt during the present season over the coal situation. The United States coal commission has taken cognizance of this situation and is said to be engaged in the study of the car shortage as it affects the coal industry, with the view of making recommendations to congress on the subject by the beginning of the Sixty-eighth session next December.

Officials Worried.
But a car shortage as it affects the movement of grain and general merchandise is giving the government more concern, it is stated, in effecting the movement of coal. The peak of the coal movement is almost passed, and with moderate weather through the remainder of winter no fuel emergency is anticipated.

Already the transcontinental railroads, according to reports made to the government, are operating at capacity and are unable to move a great deal of the fresh fruits and other products of California.

The railroads themselves have foreseen car shortage and are seeking private control. Their first move to deal with such a condition was to create a car shortage commission, consisting of representatives of the various railroad companies, with headquarters in Washington, and at all times in close touch with the interstate commerce commission. This step, it is now agreed, has been beneficial, but while it has systematized car movement and centralized its control, it has produced no additional rolling stock.

Secret Entrance To Tutankhamen Tomb Draws Many

Removal of Lion-Headed Couch Principal Feature of Sun-Blistering Day.

BY ARTHUR WEIGALL.
(Copyright, 1923, by North American Newspaper Alliance and London Daily Mail.)

Luxor, Egypt, February 14.—Announcement that the tomb of Pharaoh Tutankhamen, in the Valley of the Kings, would probably be opened Sunday and the belief that an earlier entrance, in secret, may be attempted by the discoverers, Lord Carnarvon and Howard Carter, brought a great crowd of visitors to the valley this morning and there was an undiminished excitement which could be felt by all.

A wait of an hour or so in the blazing sun which beat down on the parapet around the tomb, was rewarded by the thrilling spectacle of the removal of the golden, lion-headed couch. It came up in four sections, the first actual bed and then the two sides, each formed to represent an elongated lion and lastly a rectangular frame of wood on which the legs stood.

The head of both lions are sculptured with great force and boldness, the gaunt cheeks, hungry eyes, pricked ears, and conventionalized yet rugged mane, conveying to the mind an instantaneous and impressive sort of ferocious power. The legs are thin and the clawed feet large and clumsy, like those of a big puppy, and the tail sweeps over the back in a bold, spirited curve, which was obtained by using the flexibility of a vine, as was observed in the case of a vine, as was found in the tomb of Horemheb.

While waiting for the next event somebody handed me a copy of a London newspaper of February 2, in which the excavators describe the removal of the golden, lion-headed couch, the hippo-shaped, or the hippo-shaped of the Golden Hathor, as often seen in February Papyrus. It is an instance of the kind of information supplied through the channel that they referred to these hippopotamuses, carved dogs, like great dunes, but perhaps only the Egyptians will realize how ludicrous a blunder that is.

vealed that postoffice nominations have gone to 88 republicans and 54 democrats.

"In Louisiana," the statement declared, "it was indicated that during the past two years, or since the present administration began, in power, 190 democrats have been selected as postmasters as compared with 89 republicans, embracing first, second, third and fourth class postoffices. The postmaster-general was informed by state officials that they had been unable to find that any republicans were appointed during the last democratic administration."

"South Carolina was credited with enormous democratic representation in the postal nominations. In Mississippi 94 democrats as compared with 54 republicans have been given postal appointments. In other southern states, while a few more republicans than democrats hold office, the percentage is small. Alabama has 101 republican and 61 democratic postmasters; Florida 72 republican and 47 democratic; Georgia 85 republican and 54 democratic postmasters. Tennessee officials advised Dr. Work that while an accurate compilation would be submitted later, there is no question but what a majority of the postmasters holding today in Tennessee are democratic."

"Under the civil service law when there is a vacancy for postmaster in the community an examination is held and the names of the three applicants passing the test with the highest averages are submitted to the postmaster-general for selection. In the past frequently one man only, or possibly two, pass the examination. The examinations are open to all alike regardless of the political affiliations of the applicants."

the contract for plumbing; Gresham Jackson, heating, and M. C. McHaughey, electrical work.

In cutting down the original estimates on the two senior high schools from a total of $1,000,000 to $450,000 each, Commissioner W. L. McCalley, chairman of the finance and building committee of the board, issued a statement in which he attributed the action to a lack of funds caused by increased costs of erecting other schools.

Commissioner McCalley's statement, prepared at the request of the board, in order that the public might be apprised of the status of the school building program, is as follows:

McCalley's Statement.
"The total amount of bond issue voted for schools was four million dollars. On account of the inability to sell any portion of the bond issue during the year 1921 due to the sale of the bonds being held up by court proceedings, the result was that these bonds could not, under the law, be sold, and were, therefore, retired, leaving the net sum to the schools of $4,000,000 less $133,000 or a balance of $3,867,000.

"The city has sold $1,500,000 of the school bonds, which brought a premium of $40,650, giving us a grand total of $3,907,650 for the erection of the schools.

"Based on the bond market today, the value of the school bonds unsold is $2,367,000, giving us a premium of $149,594.40. We have approximately receipts for the sale of old buildings at $35,314; and we have approximately receipts for the sale of old land at $552,900. We have an approximate saving of 5 per cent on all school buildings under the cost plus plan, which would give an additional saving for the erection of schools of $112,770.18. This, together with the savings in the contracts, amount of reduction in the size of the schools amounting to $256,023.86 will leave approximately $1,105,711.44 for the erection of the Northeast Junior High school, which will be located on the corner of Euclid and Washita, and the two senior high schools ($875,374.63 for the erection of the two senior high schools).

"The board of education is of the opinion that they have been exceedingly conservative in the estimated proceeds from the sale of property now being used for school purposes, which will be abandoned, and ultimately conservative in the percentage of savings on the contracts under construction and are confident that there will be approximately $450,000 for the erection of each of the senior high schools.

"It being necessary to set up in the finance sheet an item of money anticipated before a contract can be legally awarded, the board of education has transferred from their budget for the operation and maintenance of schools, the sum of $230,236.81 to contract against the erection of the Northeast Junior high school with the provision that the current sheet is to be reimbursed for this amount from the proceeds of the sale of the property."

"As shown above, this by no means indicates that the entire proceeds from the bond issue have been expended, but there is at this time a saving of $256,000 of bond issue money, which amount will be used to defray the expenses of the erection of the schools."

many young men here attending the various colleges and universities, a large number of high class single men who are sent to Atlanta to serve as the southern representatives of the big business houses and nationally known institutions of the country. Because of their presence there has for some time been a well developed demand for just the sort of building that is to be erected by Mr. Bigham, and it is predicted that the 818 rooms, all of which have private baths, will be taken before the structure is ready for occupancy.

Instrumental in bringing about the erection of the big bachelor apartment was the real estate firm of James L. Logan Realty company, which has aided in many big developments for Atlanta. This firm will have charge of the renting of the apartment building.

Details of Building.

In an interview with Mr. Daniel, of the firm of Daniel & Beutell, the following interesting facts with reference to the details of the new building were developed.

The financing of the building will be arranged through the issue of a million dollars worth of bonds. The building proper will cost in the neighborhood of $1,500,000. The most of the furniture will be about $200,000. The lot, which fronts 154 on Harris street, running back 90 feet, is valued at $1,000 a front foot, bringing the total cost to $154,000. These figures, with other miscellaneous expenses, will bring the grand total cost of the big building close to $2,000,000.

The first floor of the apartment building will be devoted to six shops, including a barber shop, and two handsome stores. A ladies' parlor or reception room also will be provided. This will be the only department of the building in which ladies will be allowed to enter. There will also be a writing room and a large dining room provided for on this floor.

The basement will contain the heating plant, the laundry, pressing club, boiler room, and other accessories necessary for the operation of the building.

Among the new features that are to be provided will be an extensive gymnasium and swimming pool, and Turkish baths. The gymnasium will be one of the most complete departments of the building. There will be a large and handsomely appointed billiard room, in which guests of the building may while away the time in recreation, as well as a splendidly arranged library.

The building will be erected in the shape of an E, giving every room an outside view and providing plenty of air and light.

Each room will have a private bath with showers and attached to the bath will be a dressing closet, in which toilet accessories of the modern variety will be installed. The bed room will be made available as a living room by reason of the Murphy door beds that can be folded up and retired during the day, leaving the entire space of the bed room for use as a living room.

Twenty-five of the apartments will be of two and three rooms. The Murphy beds, which have been included on the plans for the building, according to Mr. Daniels, are the very latest pattern and are constructed with handsome square steel tubing and finished in mahogany. In addition to giving a most convenient service, these beds will present a most pleasing appearance.

Large Ballroom.

The plans also include the arrangement on one of the floors for a large ballroom, which may be used either as a ballroom, auditorium or picture theater for the amusement of the guests.

In addition to erecting the building of absolutely fireproof materials, the architects have planned for every facility to make the building safe from such danger, providing two easily reached stairways as well as passenger and one freight elevators.

The exterior of the building will be of reinforced concrete and pressed brick. It will be adorned with beautiful designs of terra cotta.

No name has yet been chosen for the apartment but it is expected that a suitable one will be chosen by the time it is completed.

C. J. Haden is chairman of the committee in charge of the luncheon. Governor Hardwick is scheduled to speak, although it is not certain whether he will be able to attend since he has been confined to his apartments with a severe cold for several days.

John W. Holder, chairman of the state highway board, and W. H. Neal, chief engineer of the department will speak.

February, the word, is from the Latin, meaning purity, the month being one of preparation for festivals to come.

COMMERCE EXPERT TO VISIT ATLANTA ON AMERICAN TOUR

Atlanta has been selected as one of the 14 cities which will be visited by Julian Arnold, commercial attaché of the United States government in China, who is now on a tour of the principal business centers of the country prior to his return to the Far East in April. Mr. Arnold will arrive in Atlanta from Washington, D. C., on the morning of March 12, and will remain in this city until midnight of the same day, when he will go on to New Orleans and thence to the Pacific coast, embarking from San Francisco on April 5 for China.

Arrangements are now being made by B. G. Giesinger, district manager of the Atlanta office of the department of commerce, for Mr. Arnold to address public gatherings and to confer with business men who are interested in trade with the Far East. According to Mr. Giesinger, Mr. Arnold is considered to be the best informed foreigner in China on Chinese economic conditions and has probably traveled more extensively in that country than any living American. Mr. Arnold's visit to Atlanta will be the first of a series of important trade conferences which the Atlanta office of the department of commerce is arranging in order to give business men of the city first-hand information on matters pertaining to world commerce.

NEGRO THIEF SUSPECT PLACED UNDER ARREST

Charles Thomas, alias Charles Anderson, negro, is being held without bond by police, suspected of implication in several burglaries. His arrest by Call Officers John Wood and Odus Howell Wednesday grew out of his efforts to sell ladies' finery at such low prices as to arouse the suspicions of negroes in the vicinity of Rock and Haynes streets, who notified the police. The negro and a quantity of articles police believe were stolen were brought to the station house.

VICTOR INNES WILL FACE TRIAL MARCH 26

Federal Authorities Will Accuse Him of Using Mails to Defraud.

Victor Innes will be brought to trial in federal court March 26 on a charge of using the mails to defraud, it was announced by District Attorney Clint W. Hager Wednesday.

Innes was accused of the murder of the two daughters of the late Sheriff Nelms. The girls disappeared several years ago. The evidence against him, however, proved insufficient and he was brought back to Georgia from Texas and tried on a charge of larceny after trust. He has only recently finished serving a term in the Fulton county convict gaug for this offense, and was arrested immediately upon release from the convict camp on the federal charge.

An unsuccessful attempt to quash the indictment charging use of the mails to defraud was made only a few days ago.

Mrs. Zion Indicted.

A true bill charging that Mrs. Leah Zion, former proprietor of the Exclusive Stout Shop, in the Peachtree Arcade, forged the endorsement of S. Steinberg to a note for $800 was returned Tuesday by the Fulton grand jury. Mrs. Zion is said to be in New York at present.

Efforts will be made at the dinner, Secretary Bergen said, to increase the membership of the association by bringing the members of the famous combat unit in closer touch with each other.

New Spring Fashions

New Dresses $14.75 to $63.75

Not Only Alluring in Style; but They're Alluring in Price!

NEW dresses for spring! It's a topic of conversation at tea tables—wherever women gather. What silks are in vogue? What are the style lines? What colors are best? A glimpse through the new dress fashions High's is receiving tells you all of these things.

THE SILKS? One sees flat crepes, Canton crepes, crepe romaine, alltime crepe, taffeta and rough knit silks in the sports costumes.

THE STYLE LINES? Straight and slim and supple, with the exception of an occasional hip ruffle on some audacious little basque affair, and all taffeta frocks are bouffant.

THE COLORS? Lanvin green is the newest and best liked of the colors; rose comes next, then gray. Of course, navy and black are always prime favorites, and they are this season, too.

—The waistlines are low about the hips with a tendency to creep upward. Beads weight down panels and sleeves and blouses. The influence of the gay bandanna kerchief is seen often. Sleeves come to the wrist or barely over the shoulders. But—though many are the ways of these spring dresses, all of them contrive to be charming. And High's has contrived that they're delightfully little in price.

Spring Capes at $24.75 to $59.75

If You Want a Spring Wrap, the Cape's the Thing!

HOW pretty the capes are this spring! Yes, they're prettier than in seasons past. They're so graceful! Made of soft, supple fabrics that hold to the long, slim lines that Fashion favors for spring.

—And High's has some especially pretty capes for you to choose yours from. Of glossy, high pile fabrics such as Brytonia and Arabella. Then there are capes of Poiré twill and tricotine. Some of them have alternating panels of heavy fancy silk crepes. Collars are round crushed affairs that fasten with fancy clasps. Some are trimmed with monkey fur, others with long fancy tassels.

—Sports capes of plaid velour are $14.75. Some wrappy coats with loose sleeves are made of soft, rich pile fabrics and are priced up to $79.50.

Recommend Cut In Freight Rates On Weevil Poison

Southern Freight Association Proposes to Cut Rates in Half on Arsenates.

Savannah, Ga., February 14.—The Southern Freight association in an effort to eliminate the ravages of the boll weevil, at its session here today, recommended to cut in half the rates on calcium arsenate, an action of importance to the agricultural interests of the south.

The proposed reductions, if authorized, will prevail throughout the entire territory of the association, which includes the section south of the Potomac river and east of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. Committees were appointed to confer at once with state commissions and the Interstate commerce commission so that the reduction may become effective at the satutory notice.

The text of the resolution adopted follows: "Recommend that with the present effort to reduce or to eliminate the ravages of the boll weevil, so far as such efforts may be furthered through the medium of cheapened transportation costs, and the lines in Southern Freight association territory, for the cotton season expiring September 30, 1923, handle at one-half their current rates, carload and less carloads, shipments of calcium arsenate, lead arsenate and other recognized and approved boll weevil exterminators."

STATE "Y" CAMPAIGN NETS $4,921 TOTAL

Workers Well Pleased With First Two Days of Budget Drive.

Reports of campaign workers in the state Y. M. C. A. drive for $18,000 will be made at a luncheon to be held at 12:30 today, at the Ansley hotel.

Tom Johnson, state Y. M. C. A. secretary, at a luncheon meeting held Wednesday noon at the Ansley, stated that a total of $4,921 had been raised since the opening of the campaign. Mason he said contributed $900, Augusta $1,200 and Savannah $800 to the fund, while Atlanta so far has raised a total of $2,021.

The demand for organization of "Hi-Y" clubs in the rural high schools of Georgia was shown by letters to H. E. Montague, secretary of boy's work of the State Young Men's Christian Association of Georgia, requesting that the State Y. M. C. A. form "Hi-Y" clubs in Gainesville and Capilla.

Twenty-one clubs have already been formed in the state, and plans are under way to organize the clubs in Adairsville, Pelham, Monroe and Marietta and eventually in all of the 150 high schools of Georgia.

The organization work is regarded as an important feature of the State Y. M. C. A. program of 1923, for which a budget of $18,000 is being raised in Atlanta and other cities of the state. As soon as the full subscription of the budget is completed the work of organizing the rural "Hi-Y" clubs will be carried on.

LIMBS ARE FRACTURED AS RESULT OF FALLS

Two persons were carried to the Grady hospital Wednesday with fractured limbs as the result of falls. One of them, Mrs. Agnes Jones, 50, of 92 West Cain street, broke her right leg when she slipped upon the stone steps in front of the home of a neighbor, Mrs. Callahan, who lives across the street.

The other, 4-year-old Mary Ruth Bryson, of 632 DeKalb avenue, broke her right arm when she fell while playing with comrades. She slipped upon a fruit peel that had been dropped at the edge of the walk.

PLEADS FOR CHILDREN

Near East Lecturer Describes Armenians' Plight.

More than 100,000 children in the Near East who need America's help are clamoring for food and clothing, according to Dr. C. F. H. Crathern, who delivered an illustrated lecture Wednesday at the Peacock cafe, before members of the Atlanta Masonic club.

"We are caring for 115,000 orphaned children over there, but we can't take them all in," said Dr. Crathern, who is connected with the Near East Relief, "and in about a month we will start a state-wide campaign to appeal to the generous people of Atlanta and Georgia to aid these starving orphans."

He explained that the relief work was distinctly for children who were taught trades to make them self-sustaining later on in life, and the adults were helped only by furnishing work for them to do and paying them for it.

Play Victor records on Victor instruments

Victrola instruments and Victor records constitute a unit for each is made to play with the other. The reaction of the one with the other is understood in the Victor factories as it is nowhere else in the world—and that knowledge permits us to achieve a perfection in performance which cannot be secured by any haphazard relation of record and instrument. Chasing Alleged Thieves Unlucky

Ambulance Driver Reports
His Adventures to Police
Wednesday.

J. R. Gartrell, Jr., of 29 Hull street, ambulance driver for Awtry & Lowndes, was both lucky and unlucky Wednesday.

He was lucky when he thwarted an attempt to strip his automobile of its accessories, and unlucky when he pursued the alleged thieves to Bellwood avenue and Ashby streets, where they turned upon him and gave him a severe beating.

There were three men in the party, according to Gartrell's story to the police. He had stopped his machine in front of 100 Luckie street when the trio drove up in a car, one jumping out and attempting to take the front seat cushion out of his car. Gartrell rushed out of the house and the man jumped back in the car with his confederates, speeding off with Gartrell in pursuit.

RICHARDS WILL FACE TRIAL NEXT MONDAY

Alleged Striker Is Charged
With Brutal Attack Upon
Former Tech Student.

Robert H. Richards, charged with violating the federal strike injunction issued by Judge Samuel H. Sibley on August 18, 1922, will be brought to trial Monday, before Judge W. J. Grubb, presiding over the criminal division of the district federal courts, it was announced from the district attorney's office Wednesday.

Richards is alleged to have been in the party which attacked H. C. Overby, a former Tech student, who was working for the Southern railway on September 15.

He and E. L. Schell, both employees of the railway, were riding a McDaniel street car when they were attacked by a band of alleged strikers. Overby was struck over the eye with a black jack and beaten with a billie, according to his story.

The victim had been forced to leave school on account of financial difficulties, he told the officers, and was working to provide money for his sister, who was still in school.

Richards is indicted on three counts, for the assault on Overby, for the assault of Schell and for using abusive language to E. W. Tutwiler, J. M. Wise and J. T. Morrow, Jr., three guards who were employed by the Southern railway.

Five defendants who have been brought to trial on charges similar to that of Richards have been sentenced to six months in the federal penitentiary. Eight cases of violations of this injunction have been handled, three defendants being acquitted.

Sam C. Shockley, Robert B. Bogart, W. D. E. Adams, W. A. Morris and T. O. Hubbard were found guilty. All but Hubbard are now serving at the Atlanta penitentiary, while Hubbard is under bond pending appeal of his case. Larry Ewing, E. C. Wade and Lewis Riddle were acquitted.

A vacant lot, 52x105 feet, on Walton street, adjoining the Georgia Railway and Power company building, has been purchased from Ben W. Steele by the power company for $208,500 as the site for a power substation to be erected soon.

The tract is about midway between Cone and Fairlie streets. Construction of the substation probably will begin within two months, officials stated.

NEED OF GOOD ROADS STRESSED BY WATKINS

City Club Members Are Told of Important Questions Facing State.

"The question of good roads is probably the most important problem that now confronts Georgia because there must of necessity be good roads before the farmer can haul to market the produce that will succeed cotton," Edgar Watkins, president of the City Club of Atlanta, told the members Wednesday night at their first dinner served in the new headquarters, 17 Poplar street.

"Another need of the state is a revised tax system," he declared, "and this must come as the result of a demand from business men, not of one section of Georgia, but from all sections of the state, who by virtue of their accurate knowledge of conditions will work out a feasible system."

He stated that the club would seek to bring about a harmonious viewpoint on the part of all influential men in the state, co-operate with other city clubs in the state to advance and aid educational institutions, to accumulate and disseminate information on industries and resources, and to offer constructive suggestions to build for the good of every interest and all communities, while individuals and community interests will be left to their own organizations.

Judge S. Price Gilbert acted as toastmaster and made a short talk in which he stressed the value of a clear understanding of Georgia's needs by Georgians.

It was brought out at the meeting that the club has a present membership of about 250 members.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS INTERESTED IN FILM

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce is interested in an industrial moving picture, "Making of Cast Iron Pipe," which contrasts the old method of casting vertically in dry sand moulds with the new centrifugally cast and annealed method.

Letters have been sent out to a large number of business men, asking their attendance at the chamber of commerce assembly hall, second floor, on night at 8 o'clock to see the picture.

Husband Was Drunk
When Child Died,
Divorcee Pleas Says

During the fatal illness of their little daughter and until after the child's death and burial, Earle Wayne Johnson remained drunk, according to a divorce petition filed in Fulton superior court Tuesday by his wife, Mrs. Minnie Coleman Johnson.

His behavior during the fatal illness of their child caused the third break in their marital relations, according to Mrs. Johnson. On two previous occasions a separation had occurred due to his constant drunkenness, she said. Each time, on his promise to lead a sober life, she accepted, she forgave him and resumed her relation as his wife. The final separation occurred last November, she said.

Atlanta Elks Thursday night will vote on the largest number of applicants ever presented at a single meeting in the history of the local fraternity, when the lodge will pass on 211 applications for membership.

The prospective members were secured through the activities of Elks' campaign teams who are seeking a 5,000 membership before the national Elks' convention to be held in Atlanta in June.

The membership at the present time totals 2,500, lodge officials say, who express much gratification over the results of the current drive.

The applicants who are accepted Thursday night will not be initiated, it is said, until a meeting in March.

While she works day and night as a seamstress, her husband, J. B. Kelly, "appears to be prosperous and rides around in an automobile with other women," Mrs. Sallie Tillman Kelly charges in a petition for divorce filed in Fulton superior court Tuesday.

Through her attorney, E. W. Roberts, she also seeks custody of two sons, Jack, aged 15, and Hugh, aged 5, but does not ask alimony.

"ALL-GONE FEELING IN PIT OF STOMACH!"

Wilkes-Barre Man Takes Paw Paw Tonic and Finds His Way Back to Health

Paw Paw Tonic has given health to men and women all over the United States. If you feel weak, run-down, depressed or nervous, you should not be without it.

How Paw Paw Tonic relieved the suffering of a man in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is told in a letter from Charles Taylor, of 161 State St., city. Read it:

"For many years I suffered from what may be described as 'all-gone feeling in the pit of the stomach.' My appetite was very poor; my strength and vitality were leaving me. Nothing seemed to help me, even though I had many prescriptions compounded as given to me by physicians of high medical standing.

"One day, while in the drug store, I talked with the gentleman who is exhibiting Paw Paw Tonic and giving health talks on diseases common to every one. I became interested and explained my case to him.

"He suggested that I purchase a bottle of Paw Paw Tonic and take it according to directions. I gladly bought the Paw Paw because I was willing to try anything for relief. I faithfully took it for a little over a week and now report that my appetite is first-class.

"I have no trouble with my stomach or bowels. I feel, in fact, stronger in every way than in years. My vitality and general mental power have greatly increased, and I thank the Paw Paw Man for showing me a way to health."

This might just as well be my experience as that of Charles Taylor. Why don't you drop in and see the Paw Paw Man, who is at Jacobs' Pharmacy, 6-12 Marietta street? He will talk to you about your own illness and will be happy to have you try Paw Paw Tonic right there at no cost to you. It costs $1 a bottle. If you can't get out to get it, write for a bottle.

A pipe line to blow grain 1,400 miles, from Winnipeg to Montreal, in four and one-half hours, has been proposed.

Using as proof of his statement an insect that kills its assailant with a deadly poison, the cuttlefish method of escaping its enemies by means of a species of "smoke screen," and the many examples of camouflage resorted to by animals, a distinguished French biologist asserts that "the inventions of the great war are all met with in animals and insects."

CLUB LIST PUBLISHED; OFFER ENDS SATURDAY

have no representation and, consequently, are veritable mines of potential votes.

"Scan the club membership list published in this issue," it was pointed out, "and you will see that there is a vast amount of unrepresented 'virgin territory' awaiting the activity of some ambitious man or woman to roll up a rich harvest of votes."

"In this virgin territory—untouched by any club member—any man or woman in a single day can secure sufficient subscriptions to The Constitution, truly 'The Standard Southern Newspaper,' to receive a great number of extra votes under the special offer of 100,000 to every $25 in subscriptions. By this means, real hustlers can pile up a great number of votes in just a day or so. The opportunity is limitless and golden."

"You will note," it was added, "that today's list is far smaller than any list ever published. This is due to the fact that approximately 50 inactive club members have been removed from the list. This leaves 50 of the choicest towns and cities—the state unrepresented and adds greatly to the amount of 'virgin territory.' It also greatly increases the golden opportunity offered new members."

How to Enter Game.

To enter your name, clip the entry blank from today's issue and mail it in. A first subscription is worth 10,000 additional votes, and for every $25 in subscriptions secured before February 17, extra votes to the amount of 100,000 will be credited you. Subscriptions should be rushed in early as after February 17 the same $25 in subscriptions will not bring as many votes by a long shot.

Carrier Boys.

If you secure a subscription from any person whose paper is being delivered by a carrier boy, the same boy will continue to deliver the papers and receive his proper portion of revenue as in the past.

No Restrictions.

There is no restriction on territory in which to work. You can secure subscriptions and free vote coupons anywhere. If you have friends in Atlanta who wish to help you they can do so by giving you their subscriptions.

Office of Club.

The office of the Help-Yourself Club is located on the third floor of The Constitution building. It is open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. daily. The office is open Sundays. The club manager will be glad to talk with you over the telephone or in his office, or if you cannot come to his office, will be glad to send someone to explain the campaign to you. Telephone 5000.

PROTESTS BLOCKAGE

IN RUHR

WIND IS BRINGING

COLDEST WEATHER

Barring the appearance of some disturbance which was not reported Wednesday, this "coldest weather of the season" in the northwest undoubtedly will bring a period of below freezing temperatures to Atlanta and the remainder of Georgia, beginning early Thursday morning.

Low Disturbance Seen.

Several stations along the Gulf coast reported winds, which Mr. von Herrmann stated, might indicate that there is a low disturbance somewhere in the Gulf or in Mexico that might cause a change in the program as it appears now. No reports are received from Mexico, and only an occasional radio report from the large area of the Gulf, away from the coast stations. The absence of reports from this quarter of the globe has in a number of instances past resulted in a sudden change through the appearance of a storm in that area, and such a happening in this instance is possible. Mr. von Herrmann stated.

However, the coldest weather of the season was indicated, and with the dropping of the mercury Wednesday afternoon and during the night, every condition pointed to a record.

Situation in West.

Chicago, February 14.—The cold wave that has spread throughout the central west and northwest since last night will not become much more severe but will continue to hold its own for another day and for possibly two days, the weather bureau here announced tonight. Little moderation was indicated before Friday.

The crest of the cold wave continues to abide in the northwest, Professor Henry J. Cox, Chicago weather forecaster, said tonight. He added that while the cold wave was passing eastward it was diminishing in intensity, and the east need not fear as severe weather as is being experienced here. The far south, he said, seems to be about the only portion of the country exempt from winter's blasts at present.

Chicago which was to have had a temperature of 10 degrees below zero tonight got some comfort out of the modified sentence of 5 below which was expected to be the minimum. Two deaths were reported here today from the cold.

The severe cold in the northwest resulted in stalled trains, transportation tie-ups and the sinking of a railroad ferry boat at Frankfort, Mich.

Airplane mail delivery from New York to San Francisco in 28 to 30 hours is expected to be a reality this year.

How to GET RID OF COLDS AND CATARRH

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive, Method that Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There are many people suffering from chronic catarrh who would like to know how they can stop catching cold after cold, for they must realize that sooner or later this may lead to deafness and other serious troubles. Dr. Blosser, for years a specialist in catarrh, is the discoverer of a pleasant, direct method that can be used by women and children as well as men. His remedy is made from medicinal herbs, flowers and berries which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette, and inhale the vapor into all the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs, curing catarrh where sprays, douches and salves cannot possibly reach. It contains no cubes, tobacco or habit-forming drugs.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is effective in all forms of colds, catarrh, asthma, catarrhal headaches and ear troubles that may lead to deafness. You will breathe better and feel better after using it.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy may be had at any drug store, or if you desire proof of its beneficial and pleasant effect, send 10 cents (coin or stamps) to The Blosser Co., 40 DT. Atlanta, Ga., for a trial package.—(adv.)

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calomel, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets That Are Nauseless, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds, coughs, sore throat, and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the new, nauseless calomel tablets called Calomels, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way toward preventing influenza and colds and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One or two Calomels on the tongue at bed time, with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Genuine Calomels are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, vest-pocket size.—(adv.)

Jesse W. Armistead in Memphis and his reported conference with an official of the police department of that city, Councilman Woodall stated that he knew nothing about it except what he had read in the newspapers.

"If Alderman Armistead is holding a conference with a Memphis police official relative to offering him the position of chief here, I am unaware of it," Mr. Woodall asserted. "Last Saturday before he left Atlanta I talked with him and he informed me that he was going on a personal business trip to Birmingham. The first I knew of his being in Memphis was when I read it in The Constitution Wednesday morning."

Savannah, Ga., February 14.—(Special.)—The funeral of A. P. Postell, who died from injuries received when he was mysteriously attacked several nights ago in his store by an unidentified man, was held here today. Postell was struck by some blunt instrument over the head, was found unconscious, taken to a hospital, lingered for several days, never regained consciousness to tell of the attack, and died.

Golden eyes, made of hollow metal and worn as glass ones, were used by ancient Egyptians.

OUR MERCHANT MARINE.

The displacement of the shipping bill in the senate and the parliamentary status it is now in, indicates that the measure is doomed for this session of congress.

As the 68th congress does not meet until next December, the president having declared his opposition to an extra session, the present so-called merchant marine, operated by the government, will have to continue, therefore, under shipping board management, for at least another year.

This means that the 15 per cent of ocean commerce handled by American ships under federal control will cost the taxpayers another $50,000,000, or more, before any permanent relief is in sight, and of this 15 per cent the southern ports will pay more than 50 per cent of the deficit thus fastened upon the American people.

"The supplanting of the shipping bill," reports the Associated Press, "was the result of a parliamentary situation which developed suddenly, and of democratic opposition to the bill."

The democratic senators are almost entirely from the south; and yet, while the present broken-down attempt to operate a government-owned merchant fleet strikes most heavily at the south both in its inadequacy and in the expense of its maintenance, it is unthinkable that this opposition should encompass the defeat of the measure without at least offering something better, or suggesting some relief to the present distressing situation.

This view is accentuated by the further and most outstanding fact that the subvention to the American ships proposed in the bill amounts annually to an amount not to exceed one-half of the losses sustained in the operation of the fleet alone, not to take into account the carrying charges on the $3,000,000,000 invested in ships, most of which are tied up at docks, and deteriorating at an alarming rate.

Whatever the position of the democratic party may be as to "subsidy," this bill does not propose a subsidy in the sense of special privileges. It proposes only an investment in efficiency, and in the building up of a merchant marine that shall meet the ambitious requirements of the greatest producing nation on earth, and one that should be secondary to none in dotting the seas with her flag.

In the year 1921 the total commerce in and out of southern ports amounted to $2,800,000,000. The exports from five southern customs districts amounted to $1,867,000,000 as compared with a total of $356,000,000 from the entire Pacific coast. This means from the great ports of San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, Seattle, Portland and Tacoma. Three-fifths of the seacoast of America, swinging around the Florida keys into the gulf and on to Brownsville, Texas, belong to the south.

And yet, with the figures as outstanding as the leg of a pot, with the immense potentialities for the development of foreign commerce through southern ports standing out with unmistakable boldness, a measure undertaken to save our merchant marine is defeated by the very representation whose section should be most benefited by an active merchant marine.

The following from an editorial in the Manufacturers Record is illuminating:

"Unless our flag floats in all the ports of the world the respect for it will be lessened on the part of other nations and our power to command the trade of other countries will be greatly decreased. The ships of every other nation give first attention to the flag—our own people, regardless of all gleams which may be made by foreign ship-owners. As a German steamship line some years ago, in fighting the effort of the country to develop a merchant marine, was found by congressional investigation to be carrying on its payroll a Washington agent of one of the leading press associations, in order to mislead the public as to the need of an American merchant marine, so influences of many kinds are at work today to mislead the people of the country and to fill many newspapers with propaganda, the origin of which some of them do not themselves understand, against the necessity of a subvention for the upbuilding of a merchant marine. Without a merchant marine this nation would lose many of its commercial potentialities and would be, in time of peace and in time of war, at the mercy of other countries and its flag would be despised by the peoples of many nations because it did not have the courage to see that the Stars and Stripes floated in every port and on every sea."

Of course the foreign shipping interests have been fighting the bill. They know what its enactment would mean toward rehabilitating American supremacy on the seas; and why should the great merchant ship operating concerns of Europe want to see a system that has trailed the stars and stripes in the handling of foreign commerce be supplanted by the virility of new life and competency?

But the shipping bill seems to be doomed for another year. In the meantime the business men of the various sections should decide upon some coordinated program for getting the idle bottoms into service, for the enlargement of the private shipping interests under the American flag by the sale, in amortization terms, of serviceable ships now tied up, and of otherwise holding together, temporarily at least, a problem which another congress may have the wisdom to solve.

A NOBLE WORK.

Nine years ago there was established in Atlanta a self-supporting boarding house for women.

It was the vision of Mrs. R. D. (Annie) Cruse, and for years, until ill health prevented, the "A. C. Club," named after its founder, was largely administered by this good woman, who gave of her time and executive force in the interest of providing for business women of the city a Christian home, with every feature of cleanliness, sanitation and wholesomeness, surrounded and influenced by the highest and the most entertaining and attractive ideals of morality.

It was not intended, nor has it ever been a charity. Not one penny has ever been solicited. And yet the costs to the guests were made as nominal as practically possible, board and room never exceeding $5 a week.

This was made possible by the co-operative interest and work of the Young Woman's Bible class of the Central Presbyterian Sabbath school. There has been no salaried worker except the superintendent. Volunteer workers have been many. It is operated by this class. "A. C. Club" not only has the elevating influences of undenominational religious home life, but there is a library, music room, game and athletic room and other adjuncts to make the club inviting as well as beneficial.

The other day, unsolicited, Mrs. Mary V. Egan, a member of the Central Presbyterian church, and a woman whose Christian philanthropy is known to her intimate circle, gave $5,000 toward the building of a permanent home for the club—a home larger than its present provided quarters, and built especially for the club's purposes. There were no strings tied to the gift, no provisions or restrictions. Mrs. Egan knew of the good work of this beneficence and of her own volition encouraged it with this magnificent sum.

The club already has $5,000 that it has accumulated in the nine years of its existence. This makes a total fund of $10,000 toward a home of its own, with hospital, sewing room, laundry for use of girls, and other institutional departments.

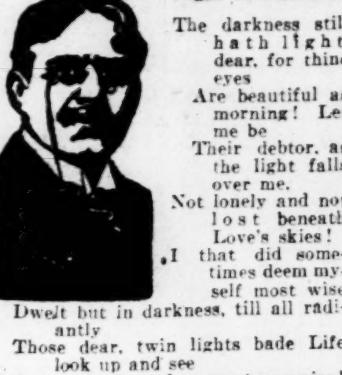

It is a magnificent beginning and without solicitation or "drive," which system the class will not adopt, it is hoped that other philanthropists may see and encourage this good work.

The present club has registered more than 1,000 guests, and turned away thousands of others. It cannot accommodate more than 32 to 34 regular guests.

It would be a forward looking Christian movement to complete the hopes of the "A. C. Club." It is a noble adjunct of church work, and the churches of Atlanta could engage in no more uplifting service.

Farmer to Teach Cousin in City Something New

Will Turn Tables and Impart Information to Urbanite Through Movies.

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel, Washington, February 13.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Uncle Reuben has decided to approach his city friends through the medium of the movie, a Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers' union and chairman of the National Board of Farm Organizations, today announced. Mr. Barrett said a famous scenario writer had produced what he regarded as a stupendous story and this will be shown on the screen of thousands of playhouses within the next few months.

More than seven hundred feet of film have already been produced, and the direction of a man who has acquired world-wide fame in his profession. Mr. Barrett said, details of distribution and finance have been attended to, and are in progress of preparation, it was explained, and the farm leader insists that the picture will excel in gripping and interesting quality any other picture of the kind.

The writer of the scenario is a man who has spent the larger part of his life on the farm and is said to be an authority on agricultural problems, especially as they affect national sociology. Yes, Uncle Reuben has decided to use the film and believe me, he is going to do it on a scale commensurate with the importance of the "agriculture." Mr. Barrett said, "The farmer is going to get close to their own friends through the medium of the movies and they will tell the truth concerning their calling. We are going into this enterprise because we believe the screen is the most effective purveyor of facts that is at the disposal of the people."

The picture, Mr. Barrett said, is the product of many months of painstaking effort. It does not stir prepossessions, but it does appeal to the heart. If there is propaganda in the picture it will be very difficult for the audience to detect it. The skill of the writer of the story is made abundantly manifest in this fact. The theme of the story is the most talked of in the world today.

"A number of men of authority in movie land have examined the story and the film already taken and they say it will be a world beater," Mr. Barrett said. There are tragedy, comedy, love and romance in it. The writer of the story knows how to draw a picture and with equal skill he knows how to tell it. Mr. Barrett said the city man had spent so much time and money trying to educate the farmer that Uncle Reuben thought it was time to reciprocate by giving the urbanite the benefit of information from a rural viewpoint. "I tell you what," said Mr. Barrett, "we are going to put on a show that will compel attention and must impart knowledge. It is about time that we began to tell our city brothers some facts concerning agriculture and in such a way as will leave no possible room for misunderstanding. It is not every show that can impart constructive knowledge and at the same time thrill and convince the student."

Some idea of the magnitude of the picture will be obtained by the fact that one scene shows in action at one time more than forty-five thousand persons.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, February 14.—He is a pitiful human being that was a brilliant mind had become tarnished. Once he wrote ponderous tomes on philology—and led the life of a bookish scholar.

There was a peaceful stucco home in the upper Bronx, a wife and three children. He was a husband who could be depended upon never to hearken to Broadway's beckoning fingers. And yet it was Broadway that claimed him—wrecked his soul and body.

Here was a man of erudition, whose world was his books, his home and his garden. His recreative moments were spent at the galleries or the lecture. He did not smoke, drink or gamble.

Then the cataclysmic descent! To me it is the strangest story ever told along the roaring way. He had come up to the public and published ten years ago. He said afterward that he could never understand his actions that day.

There was a crowd of the gay places in Thirty-eighth street he heard the sound of music, the shout of laughter and merriment, it flashed over him that his life was dull and drab. He turned into the place bewitched and feverish.

There were "drink boosters" there and one came to his table. She was everything that he was not. A vital attraction for each other sprang up and he never returned to his home again. Together they swung into the primeval paths. They drank deep of the frenzied life at that time.

They roamed the world and she died in a lonely South African kraal. He came back and the East Side swallowed him. The other day he was arrested for stealing a volume.

SODIUM CITRATE.

Citrate of soda was formerly used in the modification of cow's milk for infant feeding. The fashion in milk modification changes often than the length of skirts. So milk of magnesia, lime water, and cereal waters successively came into use instead of sodium citrate. I mention this to show how harmless is this old domestic medicine. A whole ounce of it swallowed at one dose acts merely as a dose of salts; in fact the French formerly advocated the use of citrate of soda as a saline laxative.

Sodium citrate in the medicine cupboard serves two purposes. Suppose some member of the family has a young boy or a runaround and some such infection and is fond of gambling, hence unwilling to seek medical attention.

Mrs. Gamp drops in and has a look at the sore. She immediately recalls a number of identical cases in which she used Mr. Hargrave's citrate. It is a sure cure for the ailment. It is a sure cure for the ailment. It is a sure cure for the ailment.

The question arises—shall we police the sore place? And the answer depends on how many fingers we are prepared to raise in the pleasure of defeating the doctor.

Don't apply a poultice on any such inflamed or sore place unless you wish to keep the sore open and the pus to run. It is a sure cure for the ailment. It is a sure cure for the ailment. It is a sure cure for the ailment.

Says No Referendum Necessary on Question of Prohibition Enforcement

Editor Constitution: Every argument save one put forth by The Boston Post in behalf of a prohibition referendum and showing that the law is being generally violated, is a stock argument, that has been repeated a hundred times. The prohibition laws came about in an orderly way, the American way. The amendment was proposed under the same sort of pressure that other amendments to the federal constitution have been in the past, and adopted by the states in the same way and with great unanimity. Hundreds of elections were held in all parts of the country. The ballot box was the instrumentality behind the movement at every turn, and was then opposed by the influences that now appeal to it frantically.

There is nothing to this persistent insistence for a referendum except the last desperate hope of the liquor interest to take another chance and avoid the consequences of the free use of money against prohibition. "Modification" is their catchword.

A light wine and beer modification of the Volstead act would merely mean annihilation of prohibition. Here and here would be a negligible few wish the old saloon back. How much better would the new saloon be? They would smell as bad and be as destructive of the best in American life. They would dispense more potent poisons than the old.

To sell the lightest wine and weakest beer would be violating the federal constitution, which forbids "intoxicating liquors." If the wine and beer would not intoxicate, nobody would want them. The intoxication is what is at all about, on the desire of weak men for intoxication the brewer and liquor dealer hangs his hope, and on that hope are yet willing to spend big money in propaganda, just such as The Boston Post puts forth in its leading article.

It is true that the prohibition laws are not being properly enforced, or observed as they should be, but the country is not being "flooded with poison liquor." The stuff is being sold, and the law is being enforced. The country under the old regime was much less. The "army" of enforcement officers is small. In Georgia the federal force is smaller than the county police force. This country has the fourteenth largest police force. The sheriff and police have not been increased on account of prohibition. It does not cost as much as tick eradication in the same territory. The truth is that congress, the states and the municipal governments have not been willing to incur reasonable expense for prohibition enforcement.

Military Drill For Office Boys Started in N. Y.

First Steps Taken for Nation-wide Army of 14,000 "Winged Mercuries."

BY WILL JOHNSON.

New York, February 14.—An expeditionary force of messenger boys is being called to the colors. Already in New York, Idaho, Iowa, Kentucky, the East Side, finds himself a lieutenant. His brother Joe is a captain.

The New York battalion held its first regular drill Tuesday night when four companies of district messenger boys of between 14 and 16 years of age were put through the paces of the manual of arms by two West Point cadets, Fred Nessel, of Marion, Ind., Homer Tully, of Rush, Colo., and a former regular army sergeant.

The drill marked the first step in the organization of a nation-wide army of winged mercuries, totalling 14,000 boys when finally completed. A few hundred will be enlisted in New York.

The Western Union Telegraph company is out to destroy all existing notions concerning the pep and morale of messenger boys. They ain't what they used to be; they're live ones now; no more do they read Nick Carter and the Boys of Society.

They are going to be educated right along with their sedentary executives that are to make them as understanding as a West Point elite squad.

United States to Help

Any notion that this expeditionary force is not to be military in all senses of the word may be dropped forthwith. For negotiations are on with the United States war department for large consignments of rifles and other equipment and there are to be military camps and other fixings.

"We are out to correct the erroneous impression shared by the general public that the messenger service is a blind alley job with no future," said J. R. Hyatt, commercial superintendent of the Western Union, in an interview with the United News. "Through the medium of this organization the company expects to provide a better prospect for the future of the messenger boys and to improve the morale of the service along the line."

"These boys henceforth will be working for something. They are to be selected for responsible positions with the company, the more intelligent going into the clerical branches. We will take others and train them in radio and telegraph experts. In addition we will have athletic meets bringing boys from all over the country."

"Will Give Them Chance."
"The New York battalion we are now training are selected boys and they are to be officers who will train other youths. The average age of the boys we get is between 14 and 16 and we believe we will be able to do much with them. Generally they are the most unfortunate of the unfortunate boys and we are determined to give them a chance."

"Right dress!" boomed Cadet Nessel, and one hundred boys snapped in. "Right about, face!" commanded Cadet Tully and another company greeted him with a cheer.

"To the rear, march!" to the rear, march! company halt, right dress!" streaked the army sergeant.

: PITHY PARAGRAPHS :

The editor wishes his knights of the quill would try out on more epigrams, or one or two line comment. This type of humor is exceedingly clever—it is well suited to the screen.

A few years ago film published on its cover a short bit of repartee handed down from Cicero's day—and the public laughed at it all over again. Cicero says a man called and asked for the mistress of the house. "She is not at home," said the servant. "Then," said the man, "tell her I didn't call."

Humor in a short comment often lies on the change of a single word to produce a sharp contrast. As: "We are burdened with excess prophets." It may be the selection of the right word in the wrong place, so to speak, as in the old one of Mr. Oliver Herford's that "Actresses will happen in the best regulated families."

Mrs. Lida Wilson Turner and A. A. Craig today win the two pairs of passes to the Howard theater, where a Pithy Paragraph film is being shown.

NEW GENERAL TAX ACT FOR STATE IS URGED

Comptroller General William A. Wright Will Ask Legislative Action.

Comptroller General William A. Wright announced Wednesday that he will ask the next session of the Georgia legislature for a new general tax act, eliminating the possibility of repetitions of the various injunctions and court actions which have been brought against the state under the provisions of the last tax act.

The present act was passed in 1921 and there have been amendments added to it since. It now carries a total of 104 subjects in place of the mere half dozen which were in force when General Wright took office. One result of the involved character of many of the subjects has been a shortage in the state's income for 1922 and 1923 because of the failure of the act to bring in much expected revenue which had been counted on and used in the state budget.

Many important cases have been brought against the act, one of the leading ones being that of the National Life Insurance company, of Montpelier, Vt. The large majority of these cases make the same argument, that the state cannot collect a tax from every agent of a company after the general agent has paid a tax. The suits are brought against General Wright personally and seek to recover moneys already paid as taxes. The state, in its demurrer, argues that the suits are against the state itself, through the person of its agent, and should be thrown out of court on the principle that the sovereign state can only be sued by its own consent.

General Wright is anxious to see the tax situation cleared up at the earliest possible date, but has slight hope of the higher courts passing upon these legal suits before the legislature convenes.

MOTHER CHARGED WITH DESERTION OF FIVE CHILDREN

Mrs. M. L. Luck, 28, of Suwanee, is accused of deserting her husband and five children, and her alleged soul mate, C. H. Hampton, 35, is charged with deserting a wife and five children. Both were arrested by police at 48 East Cain street Wednesday on complaint of Mrs. Luck's husband, who declared his intentions to prosecute the couple to the limit of the law.

C. V. Moore, brother of Mrs. Luck, came to Atlanta from Suwanee, in defense of his sister, charging her husband with cruelty, and claiming that she came to Atlanta for the purpose of obtaining work that she might support her children, planning to have them taken away from the father.

Luck is quoted as saying that his wife and Hampton framed up the trip to Atlanta and that he intended to prosecute both to the extent of the law. "Hampton wrecked my home, robbed me of my wife and my children of their mother."

Junior Membership Drive is Succeeding

Team Captains and Members Are Urged to Attend Luncheon Today.

"The Junior Chamber of Commerce is doing everything within its power to make Atlanta a better, finer and more progressive city," Robert J. Troy, secretary of the junior division declared Wednesday. "and it is with this end in view that we are conducting our campaign for new members. It is our wish that we secure as many young Atlanta business men as possible so that association with this organization may broaden their views and thus make them assets to their employers and the city."

An extensive campaign to increase the membership was launched Wednesday under the direction of Roy Lee Craig, vice president, chairman of the membership committee, and the team are reporting excellent progress. The junior chamber is very anxious to secure the support of the older business men of the city, and they declared that with the aid of a few of Atlanta's big business men they can make the present campaign one to be remembered for years.

A luncheon will be held in the Chamber of Commerce building at noon Thursday and team captains and members are urged to be in attendance so that further plans may be discussed relative to the drive.

CONFERENCE SPEAKERS TO DISCUSS WEEVIL

Scientists and Horticulturists to Wage War on Pest.

Former Congressman Frank A. Lever, of Columbia, S. C., who was instrumental in framing the Smith-Lever act, and George D. Smith, associate entomologist of the state plant board of Florida, who has figured largely in working out the "Florida method" for boll weevil control, have accepted invitations to speak at the National Cotton Conference on Boll Weevil Control in Atlanta February 20 and 21.

Mr. Lever will discuss the economic aspects of the boll weevil problem. Mr. Smith will describe the "Florida method" of weevil control, which has been very successful in the Peninsula state.

The Atlanta conference will actively launch the national campaign for boll weevil control, of which Dr. Miller Reese Hutchinson is managing director. Among the speakers on the program will be Dr. Hudson Maxim, Hoke Smith, and other leading national figures in finance, agriculture and industry.

The conference proposes to devote part of its sessions to a review of all the methods now existing, and to possible means of eradicating the boll weevil, and the "Florida method" will be among many discussed. Details of the method of destroying boll weevil through the sterilization of the pest by means of the violet ray, x-ray, or other radio-active waves, will be discussed by Dr. Michael Idvorsky Pupin, distinguished electrical scientist and professor of electro-mechanics at Columbia university.

Brown, commissioner of agriculture, speaking Wednesday on his return from a recent tour of several counties in south Georgia, grew enthusiastic over the rapid strides in organization for cooperative marketing, among the producers of the state. He referred to the recent organizations of the pecan and peanut producers at Albany, and stated that it would only be a matter of time until every branch of agricultural production will be similarly organized.

Wednesday J. H. Mills and J. W. Morton, field agents of the state bureau of markets, left for Albany to attend a meeting there for the perfection of the organization plans adopted last week.

Lays Aside Cares of College To Enjoy Few Days Fishing

Here he is—Dr. M. L. Brittain, for eleven months or more each year president of Georgia Tech, and immersed in the problems of education. For a few short days recently he decided to let other persons worry about the affairs of Tech and devoted a big part of his time to fishing. That he was successful is proved by the exhibit above. According to P. H. Thomson, secretary of the Fort Lauderdale chamber of commerce, his prize was one of the largest kingfish captured on light tackle in South Florida recently. Dr. Brittain's fishing companion was W. C. Kyle, president of the Fort Lauderdale State Bank.

When the U.S. Treasury Paid the Bills

Here are some interesting figures which speak for themselves, and will give to the readers of this newspaper some facts on which to base an opinion as to the desirability and practicability of Government ownership of railroads.

In the year of 1920, because of excessive costs of operation, brought about largely through the extravagances imposed by Government control, it required 94c out of every dollar paid to the railroads, to defray the expense of operating; leaving 6c out of every dollar with which to pay taxes, interest on bonds, possible dividends to stockholders, and provide for necessary improvements. During the year of 1921, when the railroads had obtained partial relief from the onerous conditions of high wages, etc., and under private management were able to effect rigid economies, this operating cost was reduced to 83c out of every dollar; and during the first ten months of 1922 the cost was decreased to 80c. Of course, war-time conditions were a factor to some extent, but it is a significant fact that during 1922, several years after the war,

Canadian Railroads, Government-Operated, Piled Up An Enormous Deficit

The statement has been made on good authority that the railroads of Canada, which are conducted under Government control operated last year at a loss of some two hundred million dollars to the tax payers of the Dominion, imposing an added tax burden of almost $25 on every man, woman and child in Canada.

The American system of railroad operation is time tested and proved—it needs no radical changes—and, representing approximately nineteen and a half billion dollars of invested capital, nine billion of which are trust funds held for widows, orphans and dependents, the consideration of railroad legislation should be approached with all care; the facts weighed and verified, and demagogic utterances discredited.

AMERICAN MUSIC MADE SPECIALTY BY TOLLEFSEN TRIO

One of the highest ambitions of the Tollefson trio, which plays at Cable hall Thursday night under the auspices of the Atlanta Music club, is to make American music better known to the American public. It has been their privilege to first introduce a number of compositions of American composers, among them Charles Wakefield Cadman's trio and the Second trio, by Arthur Foote, and they are always on the lookout for such works of merit that will be suitable for their organization.

They have likewise introduced here for the first time many new compositions of European composers, and they are ever on the hunt for novelties. "Music is far from a dead art," said Mr. Tollefson, "even though so many of its staunchest lovers are apt to believe that all new compositions are inferior to the old." The Tollefsons are believers in and defenders of modern music and its mission in the world of art.

The trio, including Carl Tollefson, violin; Augusta Schnabel-Tollefson, piano; and Paul Kater, cello, will present a splendid program of chamber music, beginning at 8:20 o'clock Thursday evening.

A complete itinerary for Georgia for the visits of the deputies will be published every day or two so that taxpayers may be informed as to when they may secure this help in making their returns.

CORRECTIONS ASKED IN STREET NUMBERS

A list of streets on which the numbers are irregularly placed or with odd numbers on the wrong side of the streets has been compiled by Postmaster E. K. Large, for submission to city council with the view of correcting the numbering.

Five pages were required to list the streets where the numbering is inaccurate. Instances of duplications, numbers on wrong side of streets, smaller numbers coming after larger numbers, and others were noted. It had been suggested at a meeting of council that Mr. Large furnish this information for use in considering plans to make corrections.

It is beautifully illustrated by Alexander Singleton.

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA RAILWAY WILL SPEND MILLIONS IN 1923 FOR IMPROVEMENT OF SERVICE.

The annual budget of a railway company's expenditure may appear to be "dry reading," but when understood it tells an intensely interesting story. To keep pace with the development of a growing country such as Georgia and Alabama, the railways must display vision, foresight, courage and faith in their territory and in their patrons.

A study of the program for additions and improvements that the Central of Georgia Railway has adopted for 1923 gives an insight into the varied phases of transportation, that vital factor in the welfare of industry and commerce.

A railroad differs from many other enterprises in that it is never complete. Continued improvement is the price of progress. Management, if efficient, will never lose sight of the goal--improved service.

With this in mind the Central of Georgia Railway plans to spend in 1923 for additions and improvements the sum of $5,741,392.

Motive power and rolling stock are essential factors in proper handling of increased traffic. Our lines of communication must provide for prompt and efficient movement of coal from the mines; lumber from the forest; raw material to and finished products from the factory; fertilizer for the field; cotton and live stock from the farm; melons and peaches from the orchard. The tourist to and from the South; the traveler on business missions expects swift and comfortable transportation.

The items for new equipment are as follows:

- 20 Mikado freight locomotives.
- 5 Mountain type passenger locomotives.
- 500 Ventilator cars,
- 100 Stock cars,
- 300 Hopper coal cars,
- 200 Composition coal cars,
- 10 Caboose,
- 2 Straight coaches,
- 2 Partition coaches,
- 2 Baggage cars,
- 1 Wrecking derrick.

The total cost of this new equipment amounts to $3,910,385.00.

In addition to the above, 100 flat cars and 10 caboose cars, purchased in 1922, will early in the year be added to the equipment.

But equipment alone does not solve the problem. There must be adequate terminal facilities to prevent congestion and delay in crowded yards and there must be protection at crossings. For the construction of viaducts and underpasses, for the enlargement of facilities at divisional terminals and for other items the management has appropriated the sum of $1,068,000.

Modern shop machinery must be provided to keep equipment ready for continuous service. The appropriation for new shop tools calls for $85,000. A like amount has been expended for tools which are just being installed.

The elimination of the old-time wooden trestle by the construction of steel and concrete culverts and bridges is another step toward improved service and greater safety, which is scheduled to require $325,000.

There is nothing more important to the safe and efficient operation of trains than the signal system. The electric block signal is the most modern device of the kind. The Central of Georgia will extend its electric block system from Fort Valley to Albany, completing provision for the protection of the fast passenger trains and heavy freight traffic over the busiest portion of our lines. This will cost $265,000.

Track and roadway must measure up to the demands of heavy traffic. The Central of Georgia will this year buy and place 10,500 tons of 90-pound rail and 500,000 cross-ties. The laying of this heavy rail will permit retirement of 72 miles of lighter rail, thus improving the entire trackage. The rail program calls for the expenditure of $676,200, of which $87,907 will be a charge against new capital.

Expenses for maintenance of way and of equipment, for operation and for transportation, are met by the current revenues of the Company. The items for additions and improvements amounting to $5,741,392, must for the most part be secured by going into the open market and borrowing money. Railway securities must be as attractive in interest rate and all investment features as other enterprises or capital will go elsewhere.

The public loses heavily when transportation is inadequate. The Central of Georgia is earnestly endeavoring to place itself in position to serve its patrons adequately. In turn we expect the public to manifest such a sentiment toward railway regulatory policies that the railroads may earn a fair rate of return upon a just valuation of their investment. The faith that the public will do this justifies the management in these extensive expenditures.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

W. A. WINBURN,
President, Central of Georgia Railway Company.

Blackburn-Rust Wedding Is Beautiful Home Event

The wedding of Miss Antoinette Blackburn and Ernest Rust, which took place Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride's father, Benjamin M. Blackburn, is of widest social interest throughout the state. The lovely home on Myrtle street presented a scene of more than the usual beauty with its decorations of smilax vines wreathing the stairway and garlanding doorways and windows.

In the drawing room, where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Henry Alford Porter, the bride and groom stood in front of an altar formed of stately palms and ferns lighted with white tapers and starred with white Easter lilies. Baskets filled with Ophelia roses were placed at intervals about the altar.

The two groomsmen, Philip Ammons and Earl Knight, preceded the groom and his best man, Edwin Kent Davis, down the stairs, and through an aisle formed of white satin ribbons and Easter lilies and took their places in front of the altar. Following them came the two junior bridesmaids, the bride's nieces, Miss Fannie Cole Blackburn and Miss Ruth Blackburn, in lovely gowns of turquoise blue crepe de chine trimmed with silver ribbon and dainty French flowers in pastel shades of pink and blue.

Mrs. John Storey Cleghorn, of Lenoir, Ga., the matron of honor, came next. She wore a beautiful gown of cloth of gold combined with graceful draperies of golden chiffon and carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses showered with Roman hyacinths.

The beauty of the maid of honor, Miss Nona Martin, the bride's aunt, who came next, was enhanced by a lovely gown of orchid tulle trimmed with silver cloth. She carried a shower bouquet of Columbia roses with many ribbons caught with sweet peas in the lavender tones.

The little ring bearer, Fritz McDuffie, directly preceded the bride, who came down the stairs alone and was met at the foot of the stairs by her father, with whom she entered the drawingroom, taking her place in front of the altar, where she met the groom.

She presented a picture of charming beauty, her blonde loveliness appearing to great advantage in her lovely bridal robe of white brocaded crepe de chine handsomely embroidered in crystal beads and pearls. The graceful gown was fashioned with long straight lines and was finished with a bateau neck and with side drapery caught with a pearl ornament. The long court train fell from the shoulder. Tollefsen Trio To Give Program Of Chamber Music

An audience representative of Atlanta's most cultured musical element is expected to greet the Tollefsen trio at Cable hall tonight, when they will give an attractive program of chamber music, including solo and ensemble work, with violin, violoncello and piano.

The Tollefsen trio is one of the most advanced of the high class musical groups who have made it their mission to make chamber music more appreciated by the music loving public. It started out nearly twenty years ago with this purpose, and has consistently kept up the traditions of the past, by the high standard it has set for itself in art and by the harmonious way in which it has interpreted its programs.

Each member of the trio is an artist individually, but they have perhaps become better known and appreciated through their excellent ensemble work, or "team work" as they oftentimes describe it. Team work in music is just as necessary, thinks Mrs. Tollefsen, violinist and leader of the trio, as it is in baseball or football. And it is because of this essential, developed through their long years of association, that the Tollefsens have reached a point in artistic development which has placed them among the first rank of their profession.

The program for tonight shows the names of such composers as Saint-Saens, Schumann, Goldmark, Tschalkowsky and others, and includes some of the most loved works of these great masters.

Holders of membership tickets in the music club and the junior department will be admitted without extra charge. Admission to non-members will be $1. The concert is under the auspices of the Atlanta Music club, and will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

CHANGE OF LIFE LOSES TERRORS

For Women who Rely upon
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Pa.—"I took your medicine through the Change of Life and it did wonders for me. I was down in bed when I started to take it and weighed 95 pounds. I had hot flashes and was so nervous and weak that everything would get black and I could not see. I would sit and cry and did not know what I was crying for. Since I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel younger than I did ten years ago, and my friends all tell me I look younger, and I owe it all to the Vegetable Compound. I do all my housework for a family of seven now. I will be glad to answer any woman who writes me in regard to my case."—Mrs. JOHN MYERS, 55 Union St., Greenville, Pa.

Many letters similar to this have been published testifying to the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They are sincere expressions from women who describe as best they can their feelings before and after taking this well-known medicine.

Agnes Scott Glee Club Will Give Gay Operetta

"The Egyptian Princess," a charming operetta in two acts, will be given at Agnes Scott college Saturday night, February 17. The libretto was written by Jeanie Vincent.

The concept of the first act reveals a number of girls embroidering banners for a festival to be held in honor of the return of the king and his vicars. A young man, a three-year-old Alva is an Irish princess stolen from her home by pirates when a child and sold as a slave in Gaul. She was bought by the king of Egypt as a companion to his only child, Aida. Amusement is created throughout the operetta by Tabitha, the sister of the queen, who is always too late for everything. In this act Herub, a soothsayer, is compelled by a lot of girls to tell their fortunes. She predicts freedom for Alva.

Act II opens with Nyssa and Phila, two merry maids of honor, reclining on a divan watching the dancing of a slave. Afterwards they conspire to play a practical joke on Tabitha. This is most successfully carried out during the course of the act.

The king sends him in advance certain prisoners of war, among whom is a captive queen, Grania. Grania recognizes in Alva her lost sister. Later a neighboring prince seeks the hand of the Princess Aida in marriage. In honor of the king's return and of Aida's approaching marriage, the queen restores to Grania and Alva their liberty.

Miss Eunice Curry, director of the Glee Club, has trained the choruses and leading characters.

Credit is due her also for the spectacular costumes in the operetta. The cast includes Queen of Egypt, Frances Gillard; Princess Aida, Lillian Clements; Princess Tabitha, Carrie Seandrett; Nyssa, Helen Bates; Phila, Ruth Johnson; Alva, Lillian McAlpine; Queen Grania, Elizabeth Lockhart; Herub, Jane Knight.

Admission will be 25 cents, or 35 cents for reserved seats.

Miss Annie James Weds F. M. Carson At Home Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Annie May James and Francis Marion Carson, of Reynolds, Ga., which took place at noon Wednesday at the residence of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Drewry, in West End, was a beautiful event of interest to a wide circle of friends.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. A. Mallory of Louisville, Ga., cousin of the bride. Many lovely spring flowers decorated the spacious rooms and palms and flowering plants were used to form a background of green loveliness for the altar, which was lighted with candles. The bride and groom were accompanied by white lilies and bride's roses.

The wedding march was played by Miss Adrienne Ellison and Miss Dorothy James, cousins of the bride, who entered the drawing room with her mother, Mrs. T. J. James. The lovely bride wore a tailored suit of blue Poiret with handsome embroidery of steel beads. She wore a corsage bouquet of Palma violets, Ricks Carson, of Reynolds, Ga., was his best man.

Immediately after the ceremony an informal reception was held and a buffet lunch was served. In the dining room pink and white were used in the color scheme. A wedding bell, formed of pink and white flowers, was suspended over the table and was caught with rose pink tulle extending to the corners of the table. The wedding cake was embellished with pink and white flowers and lovely candelabra held pink tulle which allied their soft radiance on the scene.

Mrs. Drewry received her guests in a gown of blue crepe motor embroidered in blue and white, studded with jet beads. She wore a corsage bouquet of Jacqueminot roses. The bride is the only daughter of Mrs. James and the late T. J. James, of Adrian, Ga. She attended school at Wesleyan college and since her graduation has been studying at Wesleyan hospital.

Mr. Carson is one of the successful planters of Georgia and has a large and successful farm at Reynolds, Ga., where they will make their future home.

During the reception Mr. and Mrs. Carson left on a honeymoon trip, enroute to Florida, from where they will go to Cuba.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were W. W. Carson, of Reynolds, father of the groom; Thomas James and Frank James, of Adrian, brothers of the bride; Misses Dorothy James and Adrienne Ellison, of Adrian; J. C. Cheatham, of Adrian; the Rev. W. A. Mallory, of Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Dix, of Reynolds; and J. H. Drewry, Jr., of Mercer university.

CHAPTER LXXXIIA Bad Half Hour.

"Say, what you doing here?" It was sharp, imperative voice that startled Lucile into stepping to the edge of the shadows into which she had retreated. But she was not so surprised as were the other people who had come out to the old sponge market that midnight. A woman's voice exclaimed "Oh!" in despair, and a man gave vent to one profane ejaculation before he could restrain his amusement.

The watchman who had started them all stepped forward, flashing his pocket light back and forth. It touched various parts of the feet—the shiny ones of the pretty young matron, shod in silver cloth, the substantial looking ones of the man who had tried to flirt with Lucile and had precipitated the whole mad prank, the shabby ones of the woman who carried the small box. Slowly the watchman lifted his light, until one by one they stood for a moment in its pitiless glare.

"What you all doing here?" he demanded again, suspiciously, and flashed the metal badge which he wore on his coat lapel.

The pretty young matron began to cry, which directed the watchman's attention to her. He stepped quickly to her side.

"Now come on—tell me what you're doing here," he urged. "And tell me in a hurry, or it's harder on you."

"I just—just came," she faltered, becoming hysterical. "I just came for the view," she sobbed and broke down entirely.

The watchman's remarks were more picturesque than proper at that moment. Lucile felt sorry for the pretty young matron, but could not suppress a giggle.

The watchman turned to the stocky, black-browed man who had come because he thought he had an appointment with Lucile.

"I just wanted a walk," declared the man hastily, before there was time to question him. "It's so warm this evening—and I—"

"Huh!" granted the watchman, and began to question the blond young man.

The woman in traveling clothes edged over to Lucile's side, and a moment later the small box which she was carrying dropped to the ground. Unobtrusively she kicked it into the corner.

CHAPTER LXXXIIIA Bad Half Hour.

"I only smuggled a few diamonds," she whispered to Lucile. "I brought them from Havana for a friend—then you suppose they found out?"

"Is that what you've got in that box?" demanded Lucile, becoming excited. The woman nodded.

"Then you pick that right up again!" Lucile exclaimed. "This man doesn't know anything—neither does anybody else. It's all a joke. Oh, I can't explain, but pick up that box in a hurry!"

The woman fumbled about for a few moments, and finally rose with the box in her hand, just as the watchman came to Lucile.

"I suppose you're going to tell me this was all a practical joke," he growled. Lucile stared at him in amazement.

"That's what it was," she replied. "But I don't see how you knew, I left a note in the writing room—"

"You left a note?" exclaimed everybody but the watchman, in surprise and disgust.

"I did!" she declared firmly. "I left a note—in order to teach somebody a lesson," she added, with a glance at the stocky man who blushed to the roots of his hair. "And evidently the other persons than one for whom it was intended read it. That's all there is to the whole thing."

The watchman stared at her, then at the others, and finally looked around, as if to see whether they had left any bombs lying about.

"But he's got a guilty conscience," she retorted indignantly, as the watchman began a low-voiced conversation with the stocky man, who had several bills in his hand. "Come on—let's go back to the hotel, if that man will let us."

But the watchman had to be convinced that they had had no reason for coming to the sponge market, which took both time and money. Finally, however, he stepped aside and they turned toward the hotel, and began to question the blond young man.

The woman in traveling clothes edged over to Lucile's side, and a moment later the small box which she was carrying dropped to the ground. Unobtrusively she kicked it into the corner.

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING
By Ruth Leigh
Author of "The Woman Side of Things," "The A B C of Shopping," etc.

Fortunately, the tests for determining the freshness of eggs are so simple that there is no excuse for getting anything but the best of the grade you pay for. You can tell a fresh egg by the shell. This should be rough, not smooth and shiny. You will find that a reasonably fresh egg will sink in salt water, made by dissolving one-third of a cup of salt in one quart of water, while a stale egg will float.

When an egg is "candied," that is, when it is held against an opening in a shield or a bright light, a fresh egg will seem clear inside, and the air cell will not be much larger than a nickel.

Shake an egg and listen carefully: a fresh egg will make absolutely no sound, while a stale egg will make a swishing noise similar to any liquid shaken in a glass utensil.

If you rinse all egg dishes in cold water before you wash them they will be much easier to clean. Hot water hardens the albumen, and hot water washes egg dish, when this simple act would have eliminated this work.

A talk tomorrow about noting those little things that are often overlooked when you are shopping. (Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

Makes a family supply of really dependable cough medicine. Easily prepared, and saves about $1.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for 2½ ounces of Pinex with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Mr. Marx's Secret

CHAPTER IX.

"We were in London again, having smoothly along wide stretches of silent, empty streets, empty, and almost deserted now, for it was late, 10 o'clock."

Soon we turned sharply into Northumberland avenue, and pulled up at the hotel. The man on the box—footman, I suppose he was, although he was not in livery—opened the carriage door for me, and then took possession of the small trunk.

"If you will allow me, I will take this up to your room," he said. "You needn't trouble," I answered. "I can manage."

He retained possession of it, and the count's orders were, sir, that I should not allow the hotel servants to meddle with it, and that, if possible, I should myself see it deposited in your room. You have no objection, sir, I hope?"

"Not at all," I answered, turning away. "In fact, the less I have to do with it the better."

We entered the hotel, and, crossing the hall, rang for the lift.

The lift came to a standstill at the third floor, and we stepped out into the corridor.

The count's servant followed me to my room, deposited the box on a chair at the foot of the bed, and wished me good night.

I then got into bed, and, full of excitement though the day had been for me, I slept soundly till morning.

It was five minutes past 9 when I entered the great salon of the hotel, and looked round for Lord Langerdale.

My search was not for long. He was sitting alone at a table laid for three in one of the deep recesses, with a little pile of letters and a newspaper before him. Directly he saw me he pushed them away, and held out his hand.

"Good morning," he said pleasantly. "I'm glad to see you so punctual. You're not in a hurry for breakfast for a few minutes, are you?"

"Not at all," I answered, taking the chair which he pushed toward me.

"That's right. My wife will be down in a quarter of an hour, and we'll wait for her, if you don't mind."

I bowed my assent, musing that I should be delighted, which was perfectly true.

Lord Langerdale turned a little round in his chair, so as to face me, and began at once.

"I'm rather a blunt sort of man, Mr. Morton—we Irish generally are you know—and I like to go straight at a thing. Will you tell me your mother's maiden name?"

"I would with pleasure if I knew it," I answered readily. "But I don't."

"Is she alive?"

"I think my head."

"She died about nine months ago," I said.

"And Morton is your name? May I ask who your father was?"

"Certainly. He was a farmer in Leicestershire."

"A farmer?" Lord Langerdale looked surprised, and I fancied a little disappointed. "Was he your mother's first husband?"

I was about to answer in the affirmative, but remembered that I had no certain knowledge, so I corrected myself.

"You may think it strange, Lord Langerdale," I said, "but I know nothing of my mother's antecedents, or of her family. From my earliest recollection she never mentioned her past, or permitted others to do so. There was some mystery connected with it, I am sure; but what it was I have no clue."

"I could not help observing, as everyone else did, that she was far above my father from a social point of view, for she was an educated lady, and he was only a small tenant farmer. Throughout all her life she was retired, and her last act before she died was a paradox. She left me to the guardianship of the man whom she had always before seemed to dread and fear."

"What is his name?"

"Mr. Raveron, of Raveron castle. We were tenants of his."

"My God!"

Lord Langerdale's whole appearance was that of a man strongly agitated. He turned his head away for a moment, and the long white fingers which supported it were shaking visibly.

"I, too, was moved, for it seemed as though the time were come at last when something of my mother's history would be made known to me. But he seemed in no hurry to speak again. It was I who had to remind him of my presence."

"Lord Langerdale," I cried, my voice, despite all my efforts, trembling with eagerness, "you know who my mother was? You can tell me her history?"

"One more question," he said. "Are you sure that you were born at Raveron?"

"I have never heard otherwise," I told him. "But when I asked my mother once at which church I was christened, she could not tell me, and forbade me to ask again."

Lord Langerdale looked puzzled for a moment, and then asked me my age, which I told him.

"Do you remember the time when news came of Mr. Raveron's fall, he had been supposed to have been dead for so long?"

"Yes. It is about my earliest distinct recollection," I answered. "Do you remember how you mother received the news?"

"Yes, I remember. Even at that moment a vision rose up before me. I saw her standing beneath the ivy-covered porch of our farmhouse, her beautiful face ghastly with sudden pallor, and her wild eyes riveted upon my father's bulky figure, as he shouted the tidings. I described the scene to Lord Langerdale."

"Indeed, I told him of her warnings of my meeting with Mr. Raveron, of my mother's death, and how at the end she suddenly turned round and left me to his guardianship. When I had finished he laid his hand upon my arm."

"Let us go upstairs to my rooms," he said kindly. "If my wife were to come in now, and learn the truth—and I'm afraid she would—too much for her. Come with me, and I will tell you your mother's history."

So I went, and followed him with beating heart.

Lord Langerdale's suite of apartments was on the second floor, and when we reached them it was no small relief to me to find the room into which we turned empty. I sank mechanically into the chair to which he pointed, while he himself remained standing a few feet away from me.

"From what you have told me," he said, "it will tell you your mother's history. But let me tell you my wife and your mother were sisters."

I gave a little gasp and began to wonder whether this was not all a wild dream. Lord Langerdale remained silent, while I recovered myself in some measure.

"Will you tell me about it?" I asked slowly.

"I will tell you everything," Lord Langerdale said kindly. "This is a great surprise to you, of course, and quite as great a revelation to me. Here is the story—or, rather, as much as I know of it."

He cleared his throat and took a chair by the window. Everything else in the room except his face was blurred and indistinct, and his voice seemed to come to me from a long distance. But every word he uttered sank into my heart.

"Your grandfather was a very poor and very proud English baronet—Sir Arthur Montavon. My wife, Elsie, and your mother were his only children, and they were twins. They were presented at court together, created an equal sensation, and were at once allowed to be the beauties of the season. This was the time when I first knew them, so it is here that I begin my tale."

"Six months after their appearance in society, Elsie was engaged to be married to me. But your mother seemed to be more difficult to please. She refused several very good offers, and at the end of her first season she was still free."

"I don't know exactly how or where she first met him," Lord Langerdale continued slowly, "but the following spring your mother was betrothed to the Count de Cartienne. At that time he was one of the richest, the best looking and most popular men about town. There seemed to be nothing which he could not do, no art in which he was not proficient, and he was passionately in love with your mother. Whether she ever really cared for him I cannot tell, but if she did, it could only have been a very transitory feeling."

"The marriage day was fixed, and was a general topic of conversation. I even believe that your mother had begun to prepare her trousseau, when something happened. Count de Cartienne was deposed from his post of chief favorite in society, which he at one time held, by a younger and more extraordinary man. That man was—"

"Mr. Raveron," I exclaimed.

Lord Langerdale nodded.

"I don't think," he went on, "that you can possibly imagine from the Mr. Raveron of today what he was when he became the rage of London society. He had just returned from his first journey in the east, after some perilous adventures, which had filled the columns of the newspapers for weeks, and had already created a strong personality about him. I met him, I think, on the first evening he entered a London drawing room, and I will never forget it."

"He was as handsome as a Greek god, with limbs magnificently developed by his hardy, vigorous life and rigid asceticism, with the head of a Byron, the manners of a Grandison, and the fire and eloquence of a Burke. When he chose to open his mouth."

"Men and women alike were fascinated, which was all the more remarkable as he sought no intimate avoided compromising himself with any of the latter, although, heaven knows, he had no lack of opportunity. The only man with whom he seemed to be on at all friendly terms was De Cartienne, and the only woman to whom he paid any save the most ordinary attention was your mother."

Lord Langerdale paused for several moments, and seemed wrapped in a brown study, from which my impatience aroused him. He continued at once.

"Things went on smoothly for a time, and then rumors began to get about. At first there were only faint whispers, but presently people began to talk openly. Count de Cartienne had better beware, they said, or he would lose his bride. At first he treated all such suggestions with contempt, but the time came when he was forced to consider them seriously."

"Mr. Raveron published a small volume of poems anonymously, among which were some passionate love-sonnets addressed to A. M. Everyone was talking of the book and wondering who the poet was, when, through some treachery in the publisher's office, the secret leaked out, and everyone knew that those thrilling love-sonnets were addressed to Alice Montavon."

"De Cartienne went straight to Mr. Raveron and demanded an explanation. Mr. Raveron acknowledged the authorship of the poems, and did not deny that the verses in question were addressed to your mother; further, that he would not say a word, and simply referred De Cartienne to her."

"He went straight to her, poor fellow, and was met with a pitiless entreaty that he would release her from her engagement. She loved Mr. Raveron, and could marry no one else. What followed remains to some extent a secret, but this much we know: There was a furious scene between De Cartienne and your mother, which ended in his refusing to give her up, and threatening to shoot his rival if ever he saw them together again. Sir Arthur Montavon, who was deeply in De Cartienne's debt, swore that the marriage should take place, and apparently they gained their end, for Mr. Raveron suddenly disappeared, and it was reported that he had left the country. On the very day before the wedding, however, society was furnished with a still more sensational piece of scandal: your mother left her home secretly and the companion of her flight was Mr. Raveron."

I could sit still no longer, but rose and walked up and down the room with quick, unsteady strides. Lord Langerdale watched me with a great and growing pity in his honest face. There was silence between us for several minutes, during which, I kept my face turned away from him. Then he continued his story in a somewhat lower key.

"For two days De Cartienne was virtually a maniac. Then he seemed suddenly to come to his senses, and I think we all—Elsie and I especially—dreaded his terrible self calmness more even than his previous fury. He made no wild threats, nor did he talk to anyone of his intentions. But we all knew what they were; and when he left London, secretly and alone, we trembled for we knew that he was going in search of your mother. He needed no help, for he was himself a born detective, and possessed in a marvelous degree the art of disguising himself.

"Every day we searched the newspapers anxiously, dreading lest we should read of the tragedy which we feared was inevitable. But we heard nothing. The weeks crept on into months, and the months to years, and still we heard nothing—not even from your mother."

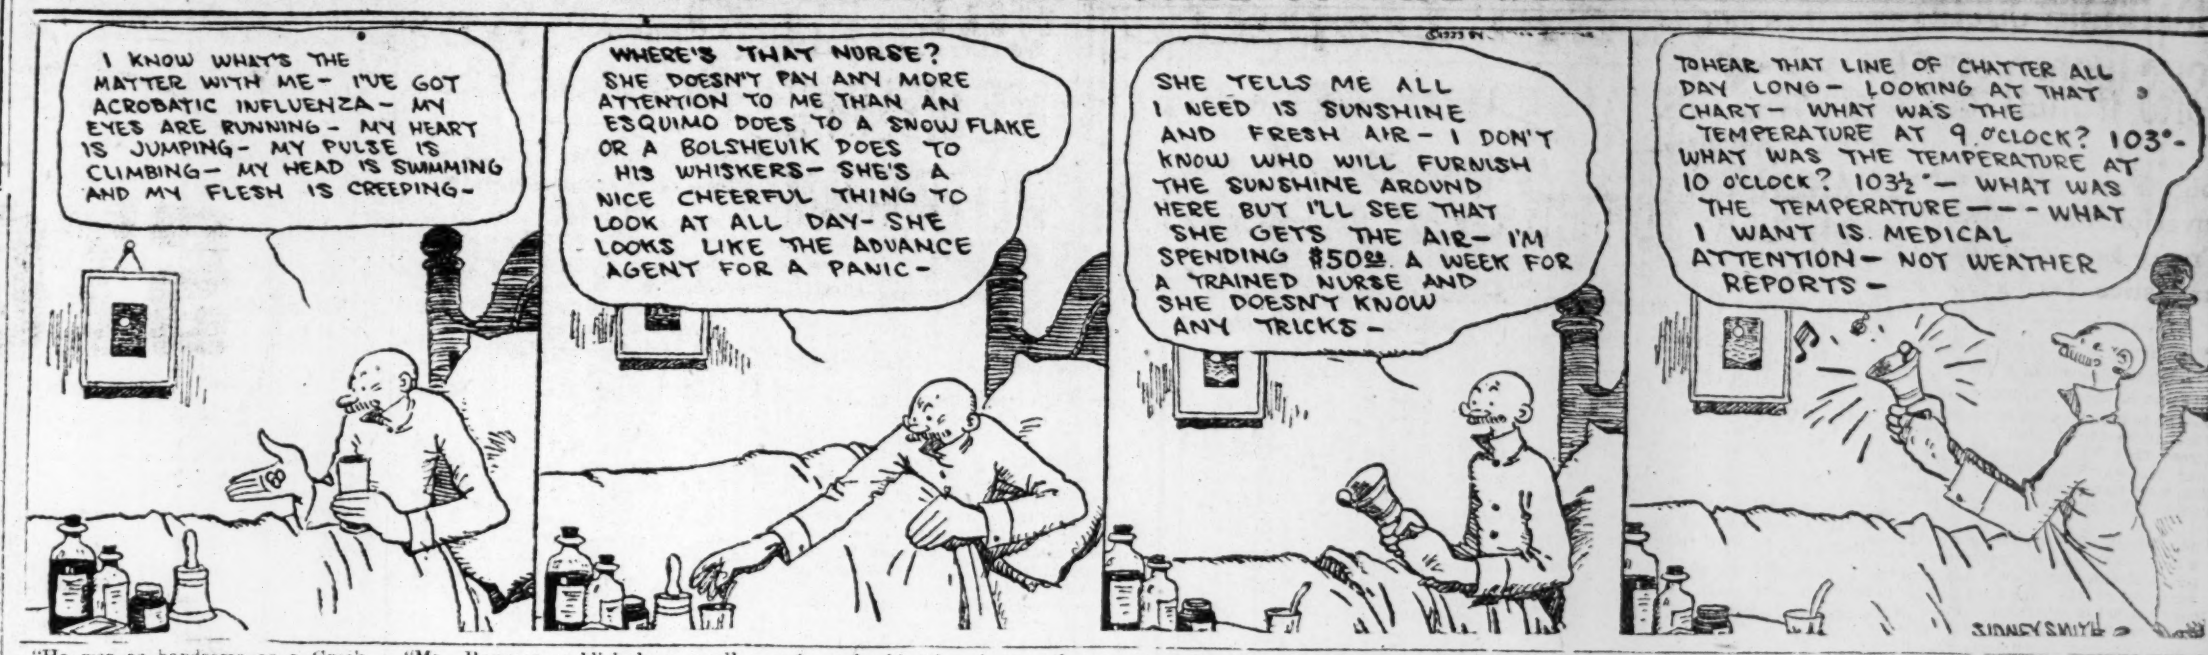

"We advertised, made every possible form of inquiry, but in vain. Then came the news of Mr. Raveron's shipwreck and supposed death, and we concluded that your mother had perished with him. I accepted a foreign appointment and only returned to England after ten years' absence. Last week, I heard at once of Mr. Raveron's marvelous return to life, and I wrote to him. The only reply I received was a single sentence: 'Your sister is dead: I have no more to say.'"

"Only yesterday, to my amazement, I met De Cartienne again, and with him, you, who I felt sure from the beginning, must be Alice's son. It may seem strange to you that I should know so much, and yet know no more. But it is so."

I turned round and faced him slowly.

"Do you mean to say, then, that after elopement my mother never once communicated with her father or sister?"

THE GUMPS—THE CALL OF THE WILD

"Only this way: She left a private message for my wife, telling her through whom to forward a letter, but not disclosing her whereabouts. Sir Arthur Montavon intercepted the message, and took advantage of it to write a cruel, stern letter, forbidding her ever to appear in his presence again, or to address him or her sister. And I am sure to say that, at his command, my wife, too, wrote in a censorious vein, hoping to make up for it by sending another letter a few days afterward. The first letter your mother received; the second missed her. She inherited a good deal of her father's firmness, almost severity, of disposition, and I have no doubt that the receipt of those letters would lead her to cut off altogether from her family."

"Then you do not even know where she and Mr. Raveron were married?" I asked huskily.

Lord Langerdale shook his head, and I noticed that he failed to look me in the face. I braced myself up with a great effort.

"Lord Langerdale," I said quietly, "this is a matter of life or death to me. You seem to avoid my question."

Answer me this: Have you any reason to suppose that—that there was no marriage?"

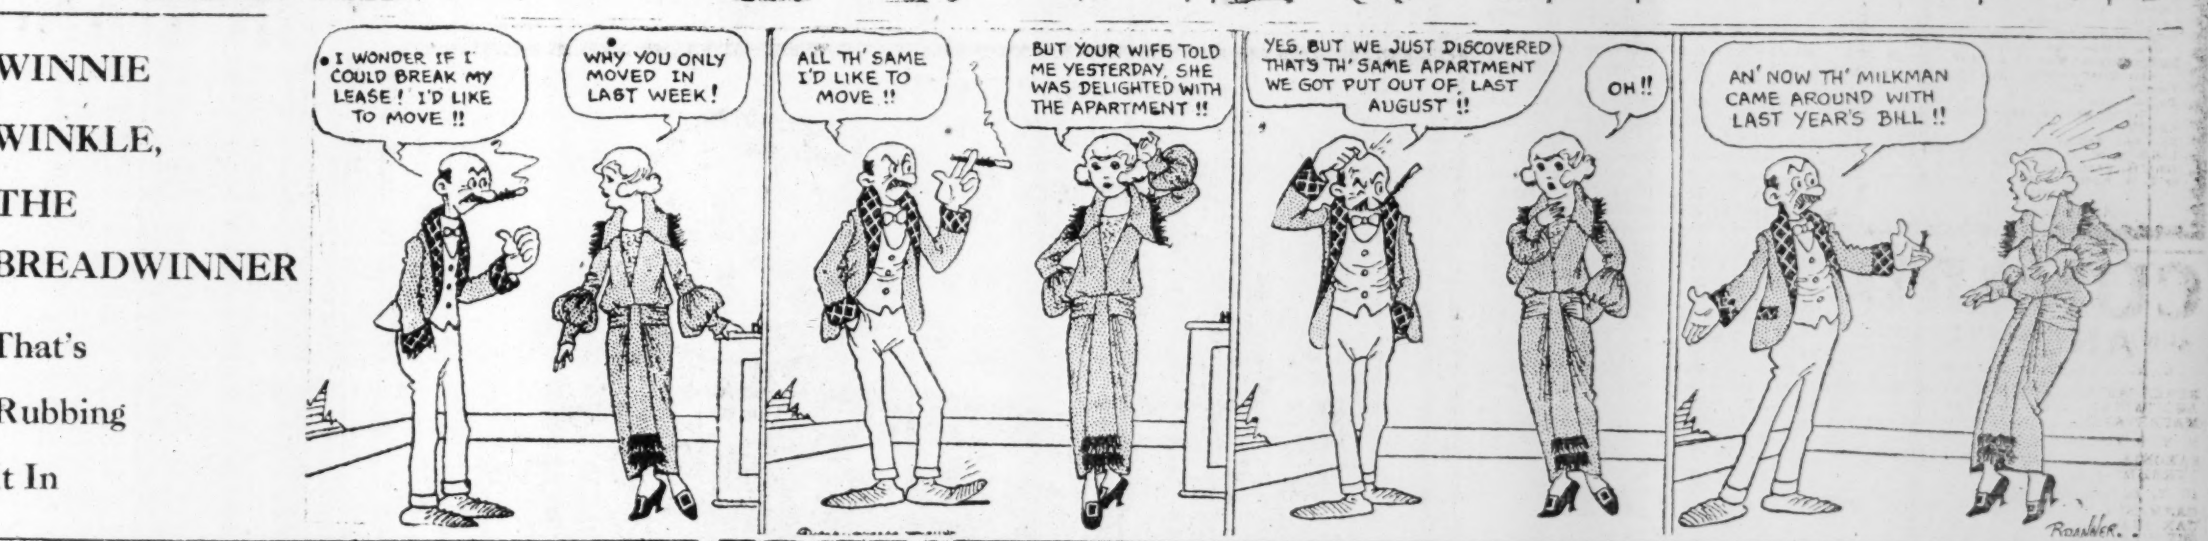

"None at all," he answered quickly. "But my dear boy," he went on, coming over to my side and resting his hand upon my shoulder, "it is always as well to be prepared for the worst. I will tell you how it seemed to me sometimes. Mr. Raveron had very peculiar views with regard to marriage, something similar to those Shelby held in his youth, and we never heard of any ceremony, which seems strange. Then, too, their separation and your mother's marriage to a farmer, her stern, lonely life afterward, and the fact that your birth has been kept concealed from you—"

He hesitated and seemed to gather encouragement from my face. I would not, I would not, for a moment share his fear when I thought steadily about it. I thought of my mother dying, with a saint-like peace upon her face, in Mr. Raveron's arms. I thought of the calm, sorrowful dignity of her life, and the idea refused for a moment to linger in my mind. Some other great cause for estrangement there must have been between them, but not that—not that!

New York, February 14.—An opening decline on relatively easy Liverpool cables was followed by rallies on bullish domestic consumption figures in the cotton market today. May contracts sold up from 21.13 to 21.45 or 17 points net higher but lost part of the gain, closing at 21.35. The general market closed steady, but unchanged to 5 points lower, last prices showing reactions of 13 or 20 points from the best under scattering liquidation or recovery.

The market opened steady, 5 to 10 points lower. Private cables from Liverpool reported scattering liquidation with buying restricted by unfavorable political conditions and a house with Liverpool connections had a few selling orders around the ring. There also was scattered southern and local selling, but it was quickly absorbed, with the market turning upward shortly after the call on the bullish reports of the census bureau. This showed domestic consumption of 140,275 bales for January, the third largest for any month on record, and a new high record for January. The figures compared with a consumption of 125,185 bales for January last year and evidently exceeded expectation. Naturally they tended to emphasize the strength of the institutional position, but after showing net advances of about 8 or 10 points, trading became quiet with the market showing hesitation. This may have been due partly to unfirmed reports of disturbing developments in the Near East which led to a flurry of liquidation during the early afternoon.

The market steadied around 28.25 for May and soon turned upward again on bullish southern spot advice. March sold up from 27.54 to 28.05 and October from 25.14 to 25.44 with the general list showing net advances of about 9 to 10 points. There was no general or aggressive buying, however, and the market eased off in the late trading where there was some liquidation. Port receipts, 9,378. United States port stocks, 441,877. Exports, 849, making 3,465,567 so far this season.

New Orleans, La., February 14.—While price changes were rapid during the greater part of the day, the market today showed a tendency toward the end was left with no trend at all, last prices being 4 points down to 6 up compared with the closing prices of last week. March closed at 28.10 cents a pound. Much of a holiday feeling persisted.

The opening decline of 2 to 7 points was due to poor cables and to rather heavy liquidation of the steady money. Write for free, Carl Schomaker, 47 W. 44th St., N. Y. City.

Are You An Investor or a Speculator?

You speculate in cotton farming when you plant untied or run-down seed. You invest when you plant Ardmore Acala Pedigreed Cotton Seed.

This seed is the only variety that produce 1-16 inch staple with a lint turnout of 40 per cent and better and made cotton per acre as the short varieties in North Georgia last year.

The following results were obtained in Walton and Meriwether counties, Georgia, and North Alabama and a letter to any of the bankers in Monroe, Ga., or J. J. Williamson of the firm of Williamson, Inman & Stribling, Atlanta, Ga., will confirm these statements.

Acala was one of the earliest cottons grown. As prolific as any of the short varieties. Produced 1-16 inch staple. Lint turnout of 40 per cent and better. Was drought resistant.

Growers of Acala cotton in Walton county today are being offered 1-2 cent to 2 cents per pound premium over ordinary cotton. The above results were obtained in actual field tests covering several hundred acres and are facts that the cotton grower cannot ignore. Every grower is putting his whole crop back in this seed another year.

According to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., Acala has the highest spinning value of any cotton grown today. Mills are offering a premium for Acala over the same length cotton of other varieties on account of the character.

The introduction of this variety in your territory at this particular time is timely indeed, in view of the fact that there is a campaign on for the betterment of North Georgia cotton.

Our supply of seed is limited and requests for prices and literature should be placed at once with our local agent.

French 5s dropped 1-4 points to 94 5/8; Seine 7s dropped 1-8 to 92 5/8 and French 7-1/2s sold as low as 92, off 1, with losses of approximately a point each being reported. Profit-taking made its appearance among the sugar company liens, eastern Cuban Sugar 7-1/2s closing 1-1/4 points lower. Local traction issues and United States 8s also were heavy, but Donner Steel refunding 7s jumped nearly 2 points and Goodrich 8s of 1931 rose one point each being reported. Some of the speculative railroad mortgages were in free supply, St. Paul convertible 4-1/2s and refunding 4-1/2s Norfolk and Western convertible 4-1/2s and Texas and Mexico income 5s each dropping about a point. New Haven issues made partial recovery from recent heavy liquidation and speculative strength was shown by Western Maryland 4s and Chicago and Western Indiana 4s.

Heavy constitutional buying of short term equipment trust certificates was reported during the day. United States government bonds were firm at the opening but eased off at the close, the first 4-1/2s dropping 10 cents to $100 and the others moving irregularly within a radius of 4 cents.

Total sales (par value) were $13,839,000.

Chief interest in new offerings was centered in the stock issue of household products and the Auto-Knitter Hosiery company, each of which was oversubscribed.

FAIR ASSOCIATION IN ANNUAL MEETING

Fairs Allow Display and Help
Sale of Farm Products,
Says J. J. Brown.

"Through extensive travel over the state I have become thoroughly familiar with Georgia's unlimited resources and as a rule I have found in the sections where fairs are conducted always turn out to be the most progressive," J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture of Georgia, declared in an address before the members of the Association of Georgia Fairs at the opening meeting of the eleventh annual session Wednesday afternoon in the Ansley hotel.

The convention opened Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, presided over by W. L. Cleveland, president. A number of talks were made by various representatives, prominent in fair circles, including J. Phil Campbell, of the State College of Agriculture and Dr. A. M. Soule, also of the state college.

Mr. Brown declared that the largest problem confronting farmers today is the sale and distribution of products. Fair help more than any other thing to furnish ways and means of distribution, he stated, in that they put the produce of the farmer on proper display.

Dr. Soule, who has just returned from South America, after attending the Brazilian exposition, spoke very favorably of the neatness and attractiveness applied to the display of farm products in that country. He said that some of the most beautiful exhibits he had ever seen were on show at the exposition, and believed that if the proper interest was shown in the state college.
